Principal search is down to 3 finalists

By Lisa Boudreau

Mark McQuillan, superintendent of schools, has narrowed the field of applicants down to three finalists for the Doherty Middle School principalship. Two of the finalists, Floyd McManus, acting principal at Doherty this past year, and Janice DeSantis, assistant principal of a middle school in Hamilton-Wenham, were finalists last year when Andover was looking to fill the vacan-

Her first two-year term began in 1960.

It's the changing of the guard on the Planning Board

By Don Staruk

The Board of Selectmen last week approved the town manager's appointment of Michael H. Miller, 42, of 5 David Drive, to succeed Susan Stott on the Planning Board, one of two positions recently vacated on the board.

Ms. Stott resigned in April after serving six years on the board. Carl Byers resigned his position on the Planning Board this month also, after six years in that position.

The newest member, Mr. Miller is a partner in the law firm of Edwards and Angell in Boston. He is a real estate and corporate lawyer and part of his business is representing clients

Honoring WW II veterans

By Don Staruk

Edward Seero was walking on the hangar deck of the aircraft carrier USS Wasp off Hokkaido, Japan, at about 7 a.m. on March 19, 1945, when a 500-pound, armor-piercing bomb went through the flight deck, through the hangar deck and exploded in the crew's mess, blowing out much of the center of the ship. One crewman with him was killed instantly and another was blown right over an airplane. He remembers hearing a big noise, feeling a vacuum, then a flash.

Fires were everywhere. The turret of one plane was on fire and its guns were firing, spraying bullets all over the deck. Mr. Seero and another crew member grabbed a foam hose and worked their way toward the plane until they were close enough to douse the flames. He earned the Bronze Star for that effort and a Purple Heart for burns he didn't even know about until he washed his face and the skin "came off just

Memorial Day services begin at 7 a.m. Monday

A military fly-over of two or four A-10 Thunderbolt war planes will highlight Andover's Memorial Day celebration this Monday, May 25.

The Thunderbolts, flying out of Barnes Air Force Base in Westfield, will make a couple of passes over downtown at about 10:30 or 10:45, according to John Lewis, veterans' service agent and coordinator of Memorial Day activities.

"The point of the fly-over is a salute to Andover's World War II veterans, both living and deceased," Mr. Lewis

Teen-agers clean up graffiti mess in Andover

By Don Staruk

Many of the 15 juveniles and two adults responsible for recent incidents of graffiti downtown began repainting the damaged property last week, including the gazebo in The Park, which was done in time for Clown Town carnival held there last Saturday.

On Wednesday, 10 Middle School students spent the half day they had off from school repainting the gazebo in The Park.

The 17 admitted vandals accepted 20 hours of community service in exchange for no charges being filed against them, a plan worked out with police, property owners, town and school officials and parents.

The kids doing the painting last week thought the trade was a good idea.

"It's not fun, but I guess it's a good idea," said Matt A., a seventh-grade student. "At least I admitted I did it."

"All I did was write on the cement. I didn't write anything bad. I just wrote 'Matt.' Right over there," he said pointing to the floor of the gazebo.

The time spent painting was to be deducted from the 20 hours of community service. Another student picked up trash in The Park because there were not enough brushes to go around.

"This takes some hours off it," Matt A. said, wielding his brush. "But it depends on if we drip or not. If we drip, then we get hours added on to our community service."

Carrie, another Middle School student, said her friends usually gather at the gazebo or elsewhere in The Park after school.

"We usually hang around here," she said.

Carrie said she was glad the gazebo would be cleaned up and that she would be upset if the gazebo were defaced with graffiti again soon.

"It better not be," she said.

"It won't be us. It will be different kids," said another middle school girl who did not want to be identified.

Most parents of the kids involved heard about the graffiti from other parents or from the kids themselves, the girl said.

"If we even tried to deny it, then we could get in even more trouble," she said, then added, "Can you put under that that she'll never do it again?"

Matt A. wasn't as optimistic and said it probably would be a mess again soon.

"When I wrote on it, at the time I didn't even think of it as breaking the law, because the thing was already totally trashed," he said.

> 'When I wrote on it, at the time I didn't even think of it as breaking the law, because the thing was already totally trashed.'

The students didn't paint any mystery around why they did it.

"Because we were stupid at the time," Andrea, another middle school student, said. "Bored."

Matt B., another Middle School student, described how a lot of the graffiti done with the magic markers got started. A couple of the boys were writing on the face of one of the girls, then they started trying to write on each other and pretty soon everybody was writing on the gazebo.

Several High School students were hanging around in The Park while the Middle School students were painting. They said the graffiti was a problem for them, that they got stopped and harassed by police for the graffiti even though it was the Middle School kids who did it.

"We've never done it. This is our hangout," said Brian, one of the High School students. "This is where we always come and we get harassed for it and kicked out."

Tara, another High School student not involved in the graffiti incident, said she thought the gazebo would stay clean, at least for a little while.

"Probably," Ms. Coppola said.

Matt A. said some of the graffiti is done by kids from out of town who visit at the Memorial Circle housing site.

Emanuel Tsiknopoulos, a painter for the town for the last nine years, sanded the graffiti before the kids started painting and said this is the fourth time he has helped repaint it. The last time was just last August. At first he didn't think having the kids do the work was a very god idea. Then he decided that if he did the preparation work needed, it would work out fine.

Mr. Tsiknopoulos will wait until the painting of the woodwork is completed, then he will go back and clean the graffiti off the rocks and cement with a sandblaster.

Tim Thomas, principal at the High School, stopped by while the middle school students were painting. He had not been aware of the deal made with the kids, but approved.

"It couldn't be better," Mr. Thomas said.

He had seen the mess at the gazebo the weekend before, during Arts in the Park, and was just glad to see it being cleaned up.

One seventh grader, who was not involved in the graffiti cleanup, watched the painting and agreed with Mr. Thomas.

"Actually it's going to be kind of good because of Clown Town," David said. "It will look good for the town of Andover to people coming here."

News In Brief

Four win Best Mother contest

Two Andover residents and two brothers from Lawrence won the "Best Mother in the World" essay contest sponsored by the Andover Center Association.

Meredith Voiland, the 7-year-old daughter of Donna and Douglas Voiland, Patriot Drive, won the children's contest. She included colorful crayon drawings of her mother and family.

Brothers Junito and Madison Ortega of Lawrence won the adolescent contest. They are 10 and 11 years old respectively. They said their mother is a good cook and a tireless cheerleader who helps them with their school work.

Adult winner, Ruth Bell Clark, a 37-year-old from Lansbury Lane, wrote about her mother, Evelyn Bell, who has devoted her life to caring for her eight children and 17 great-grandchildren. Mrs. Clark said her mother's zest for life and positive outlook enabled her to overcome cancer long before most people thought that was possible.

Town receives a $10K dividend

The town of Andover will get a dividend of $10,781 from its insurance policy with the Massachusetts Interlocal Insurance Association (MIIA). The dividend is the town's share of MIIA's operating surplus, which is shared among communities that participate in the nonprofit MIIA program.

"This is the reason we joined MIIA – to make the workplace safer for our employees and to save money," said Buzz Stapczynski, town manager.

"The main reason MIIA has a surplus is because its members are successful in promoting safety within their communities," said Geoffrey Beckwith, executive director of the Massachusetts Municipal Association, which created MIIA 10 years ago. My congratulations to the town of Andover."

AIDS Action elects officers

AIDS Action of Andover held its second annual meeting May 12, having completed another year of service to those affected by AIDS in the Greater Lawrence area.

It also provides monthly shared meals prepared by local organizations and restaurants. During this past year, an AIDS Children's Fund was established to meet emergency needs of families.

Officers for the coming year are Suzanne Sherman, president; Laura Hunter, vice president and secretary; and Marc Thibault, treasurer.

John Desmond is running for state rep.

John Desmond, 40, has filed nomination papers and declared his candidacy for the office of state representative of the 17th Essex District, which includes Andover and sections of Lawrence

He is married to Cynthia Desmond, a teacher at Bancroft Elementary School. They have two sons: John, 17, a student at Andover High School, and Jeff, 14, who attends Doherty Middle School.Mr. Desmond taught history and government in the Billerica school system for 16 years. In September 1990 he was given a commendation from Tufts University, honoring him as an "inspirational teacher."

He has a bachelor of science degree in history from Lowell State College and a master's of education degree from Fitchburg State College.

This is Mr. Desmond's second attempt at a seat in the Legislature. In the last state election he was the only Democrat to challenge incumbent Susan Tucker. He captured 45 percent of the vote, losing by only 600 of the more than 7,000 votes cast in that primary.

When asked why he wanted to make another bid for the legislative office, he said, "One reason is that many of the people who worked and voted for me in the previous campaign have been encouraging me to try again. The overriding sentiment has been that I represent the type of Democrat that they've been looking for in an election. In view of the time and effort that these people gave me in the last election, I feel that I owe them at least one more try at securing a seat in the House.

John Desmond

"On a more personal note, I'm running because I'd like to play a part in getting the Democratic Party away from the liberal faction that has been dominating the legislature and the local Democratic town committees for the past 20 years.

"The people of this state are suffering badly as a result of that faction's self-serving and irresponsible policies. The only alternative that the people have been given are the sycophants of William Weld, whose only concern is a balanced budget even if it is at the expense of our school, our elderly, our handicapped and our unemployed. We've gone from one extreme to the other; we've gone from a liberal Democrat in Michael Dukakis to a Brahmin Republican in William Weld.

"In this election I want to give the people an alternative to those two types of philosophies. I want people to know that my candidacy offers them a chance to vote for a person who has a more moderate political philosophy, a person who has always held fast to the traditional ideals of the Democratic Party while at the same time calling for more responsible fiscal policies in order to preserve the decent and compassionate programs that are necessary in maintaining a healthy society."

> 'I'm running because I'd like to play a part in getting the Democratic Party away from the liberal faction that has been dominating the legislature and the local Democratic town committees for the past 20 years.'

Doherty search is down to three finalists cy when the West Middle School principal retired. The third finalist, Ray Tiezzi, principal of Amesbury Middle School, is a newcomer to the Andover principal search.

Middle School principals in Andover make approximately $65,000 a year in base salary. Dr. McQuillan said he would have a recommendation for the committee in two weeks at its June 2 meeting.

Here's a brief look at the finalists:

Floyd McManus

Janice DeSantis

Ray Tiezzi

Floyd McManus

Floyd McManus, of Belmont, who took over as acting principal last September when former Doherty Middle School Principal Richard McGrail remained on sick leave, has been involved in junior-high and middle-school education and administration since 1971. Before taking the Doherty position this year, he was the assistant principal at F.A. Day Junior High School in Newton for six years. He is a 20-year veteran of the Newton public schools, where he taught math and science at the junior-high level as well as serving as the school's computer expert.

Mr. McManus is the only finalist for the Doherty position who previously worked with Dr. McQuillan, who was a former basic skills consultant and writing specialist in the Newton public schools before coming to Andover in december 1990.

Janice DeSantis

Janice DeSantis, of West Newbury, is currently the assistant principal at Bessie Buker Middle School in Hamilton-Wenham. She resigned her position as assistant superintendent in Amesbury last spring because she wanted to return to working with students, teachers and parents.

While assistant superintendent in Amesbury, she was the system's coordinator of curriculum and staff development for five years. She also taught math and science in Amesbury for 14 years.

Ray Tiezzi

Ray Tiezzi has been the principal at Amesbury Middle School since 1986. Before that he was the assistant principal. He has taught music education and has experience in curriculum development and headed teacher evaluation for the Amesbury school district.

One of the initiatives Mr. Tiezzi began in Amesbury resulted in mainstreaming 80 percent of the system's special needs students in regular classrooms.

Patrolman Fred Sunderland wins new panel

By Don Staruk

Patrolman Fred Sunderland Jr. two weeks ago won a court decision in his disability case against the town, which will allow him to have a new medical panel review his case.

Officer Sunderland, 43, an 18-year veteran, left the police department in May of 1988 because of emotional stress, according to court documents. Neither he or the town has elaborated on the cause or symptoms of the stress, but Officer Sunderland has called it a "medical type of thing."

The town put him out injured in the line of duty at 100 percent pay. In the summer of 1989, the town retired him at 72 percent of his his $35,000 annual salary.

In October 1989, a medical panel reviewing his case for the Public Employees Retirement Administration said the stress was not job related, and that Officer Sunderland could only receive ordinary disability pay, about 50 percent of his salary. The Andover Contributory Retirement Board subsequently turned down the accidental disability.

Officer Sunderland appealed the retirement board decision in Suffolk Superior Court in January 1990. In May 1991, the state Contributory Retirement Appeals Board heard Officer Sunderland's appeal and found that the medical panel which reviewed his involuntary disability retirement was "improperly constituted" and used an incorrect standard, and referred the matter to a new medical panel. CRAB said the original medical panel was improper because one of its three members was an intern.

The town appealed that decision. It wanted CRAB to confirm the original medical panel decision that the emotional stress was not job related. The appeal also challenged the admission of evidence before the administrative magistrate which was never previously introduced concerning causes of Patrolman Sunderland's permanent disability.

The town lost that appeal on March 6, and must now wait for the new medical panels decision.

"Now it's just a wait-and-see game at this point," said Rod Smith, town accountant and a member of the Contributory Retirement Appeals Board.

Second case

Officer Sunderland's also has an appeal in Essex superior Court of the Public Employee Retirement Administration's Oct. 1989 decision that his emotional stress was not job related.

The case was heard in December 1990. The judge decided Officer Sunderland could not be granted an ordinary disability retirement where he had an appeal pending before CRAB concerning denial of an accidental disability retirement.

The court decision required placing Officer Sunderland on injured leave pay, 100 percent of his salary tax free, pending resolution by CRAB, an extra expense of $10,000 to $17,000 a year to the town.

The town filed an appeal of the superior court finding. All the papers have been filed and the town is waiting for the case to be called.

Membership of Planning Board changes in the permitting process for other planning boards. He did all the legal work for the Great Woods project in Mansfield. He was also an applicant for town counsel here one year ago, the position that eventually went to Thomas Urbelis.

Mr. Miller and his wife, Debby, have lived in Andover since 1978. They have two children, Stephen, 7, and Andrea, 3.

Mr. Miller does not have any specific plans for the planning position, but would like to continue the board's past philosophy and practice of "planned growth" with a mixture of business and residential development, he said.

"I don't really go into this thing with any particular objectives or agenda," he said Tuesday. "I've been here since '78, and I wanted to get involved somehow."

Ms. Stott was first appointed to the board in November of 1986 to complete a term that went until June of 1991. She was then reappointed to another five-year term. Mr. Miller will complete that term, which ends June 30, 1996.

Buzz Stapczynski, town manger, said this week he has an individual in mind for Mr. Byers' spot, but has not appointed anyone yet. He expects to make an appointment by the next selectmen's meeting on June 1.

Mr. Byers was appointed to the board in April of 1986, to finish a term which ended in July of 1990, when he was reappointed to another term. His successor will finish out his term, which ends June 30, 1995.

Mr. Byers, 56, of 21 Kathleen Drive, is city planner for the Department of Housing and Urban Development and travels a lot on his job.

He served the last six years on the Planning Board while also a member of the Fair Housing Committee for the last 10 years

Mr. Byers also resigned from that committee, which hasn't been active in the past two or three years, according to Mr. Stapczynski.

One charge dropped in dog shooting

By Don Staruk

A firearms charge was dropped last week against a Salem Street man who shot and killed a pet dog for attacking his chickens.

Allen Gronquist, 34, of 261 Salem St., was charged with a firearms violation and cruelty to animals on Saturday, April 4, after he shot and killed a neighbor's pet dog, which had allegedly killed a number of Mr. Gronquist's mother's chickens at their 261 Salem St. home.

The firearms charge was dropped last Wednesday, May 13, at a hearing in Lawrence District Court because it was filed under a state statute that allows the discharge of a firearm on private property with the owner's permission, according to Wayne Nader, animal control officer. Mr. Gronquist's mother, Paula Gronquist, owner of the property, would have been able to give her son that permission, according to Mr. Nader.

Mr. Gronquist was not charged with a violation of the town bylaw, which bans the discharge of firearms.

"Those charges weren't filed," Mr. Nader said.

A charge of cruelty to animals against Mr. Gronquist was held for trial, but no date has been set for a pre-trial hearing.

"The cruelty charge went to a complaint so we're going forward on that," Mr. Nader said.

Pat Hoopes, 40, of 9 Wethersfield Drive, owner of the dead, medium-size, mix-breed female named Roxie, was charged with leash law and nuisance violations. Ms. Hoopes did not contest the charges and paid the fines for the two charges, according to police. Mr. Nader did not know the amount of the fines.

Paul Kenney, 49, of 16 Wethersfield Drive, owner of another dog allegedly involved in chasing the chickens but which got away unhurt, went through a hearing for the same charges as Ms.Hoopes but also decided to pay the fines after a judge refused to dismiss the charges against him.

The dogs apparently went into Ms. Gronquist's yard and chased the roughly 100 chickens, killing about seven of them and injuring others. A neighbor caught Ms. Hoopes' dog and tied it to a post outside a barn on the property. The other dog ran away.

Ms. Gronquist and one son, Gary Gronquist, began shooing some of the chickens into the barn, but had to move the dog because it was too close to the door. She untied the dog and moved it around to the front of the house, and tied it up again. Allen Gronquist then allegedly came out of the house with a shotgun and, while it was still tied up, shot the dog twice, killing it.

Ms. Gronquist said Allen was in the shower when she first alerted her boys that the dogs were chasing the chickens, and didn't know the dog was tied up when he came out of the house and shot the dog from about 30 feet away.

Patrolman James Reilly investigated and filed the charges.

Reynolds and Markham interior design shop is going out of business

Wendy Reynolds and Merilyn Markham, co-owners of Reynolds and Markham interior designer shop on the corner of Punchard Avenue and Main Street, will close their shop Tuesday, June 30.

Ms. Reynolds said the economy and diminished traffic on downtown streets lead to their decision to close the store.

"We will both continue to work in our respective separate businesses," she said.

"Merilyn has a decorative finish business and I will still have my Cheever House," interior design business, Ms. Reynolds said.

The two began their partnership five and a half years ago and set up shop in downtown Andover three years ago, she said.

Ms. Reynolds said she is also looking to relocate her interior design business to another Andover location, but she hasn't found a location yet.

She said her partner will continue the furniture finish business out of her Londonderry, N.H. home.

According to Ms. Reynolds, the store will continue to mark down items until it closes at the end of June.

'A Taste of Andover'

Scores of business people attended "A Taste of Andover" last Wednesday evening at Old Town Hall on Main Street. Sponsored by the Central Business District Committee and chaired by Barbara Maren, at right, and Peter Mullett, not pictured, the event recognized businesses that have located or expanded in Andover the past 18 months. That's Kathleen and John O'Brien chatting with Ms. Maren.

Doug and Ann Bellmore, owner of Uptown Kids, which just moved to Elm Street, talk with Doug's cousin, Mike Bellmore, who is the new owner of the Andover Cab Company. Food for the evening was provided by area restaurants and food establishments. William Thomas of Phillips Academy and PA students (PA Ensemble) provided chamber music and the Jazz Band from Andover High School also played.

Deborah and Bob Lane, owners of the Andover Gift Shop, look over the night's activities program at "A Taste of Old Andover." The Lanes moved their gift shop last weekend from Post Office Avenue, around the corner to Main Street where the Kitchen Korner used to be located.

Beth Anastopoulos, left, of Casey Family Services, talks with Walter Potvin and Mary Byrne, the latter being the director of the Andover Senior Center. Talk during the evening was very optimistic about business getting better in Andover. New and expanded businesses were given certificates of appreciation. Central Business District Committee members are Enzo Fossella, Barbara Maren, Peter Mullett, Richard Chapell, Leonard Wilson, David Murphy and Peter Green.

YWCA to honor businesswomen

Outstanding women in Merrimack Valley business and industry will be honored at the Tribute to Women in Industry Awards Luncheon June 9.

The business and professional community has been asked by the Greater Lawrence YWCA to choose female colleagues to be recognized at the ninth annual TWIN luncheon at the Andover Country Club.

"This is a celebration of achievement by professional women," said Margaret Salafia, chairwoman of the event and vice president of Advertising Management Services in Andover. "It allows their companies to recognize their performance and enables the YWCA to identify role models for the young women it serves."

A committee representing a cross section of the professional community has been

Lawrence General Hospital honors Pamela Kimball

In recognition of her "superior performance, attitude and achievement," Andover resident Pamela Kimball has been chosen one of four recipients of the Lawrence General Hospital's President's Award. Assistant head nurse in the Walk-in Center, Ms. Kimball has worked for the hospital for 22 years.

While working in the emergency department in the early 1980s, she noticed a need for the less seriously ill or injured patient. Patients coming in with

One of Andover's most recent additions to Main Street is the Athlete's Corner, which held its grand opening last weekend. Cate and her daddy, Tom Belhumeur, owner of the store, pause for a photo with Billy Costa, DJ for Kiss 108. The shop offered free lunch Saturday and Mr. Costa entertained. The manager of the store, Jack Norton, reports the Athlete's Corner also did good business Sunday.

Interior decorators participate in Show House

Ann Constantine, owner of Wallace-McCabe Interiors, is one of 38 interior designers from throughout New England – including two from Andover – whose proposed design was selected by the Junior League of Boston for its 1992 Show House.

Ms. Constantine's design for "Clara's named to select one outstanding honoree to receive the 1992 Tribute to Women Award.

"We have learned from history. Each year we have been inundated by competent women, all deserving honors," said M.J. Powell, YWCA president. "The change to a single award will, we believe, pay tribute more directly to all honorees and at the same time recognize one individual who typifies the tops in achievement."

Last year, in addition to TWIN awards to five nominees, a special award was given to Beatrice Caruso, top-ranking woman in Raytheon's Patriot Missile Program. An earlier special award went to Eagle-Tribune reporters Susan Forrest and Barbara Walsh for their work on the newspaper's 1988 Pulitzer Prize.

More than 200 area women in business, professions and industry have been honored since 1983.

The luncheon will also celebrate the centennial of the Greater Lawrence YWCA.

Reservations may be made by contacting the Greater Lawrence YWCA, 38 Lawrence St., Lawrence. Deadline for reservations is June 2.

Room" is the first public showing of her "window" table, designed and produced by Wallace-McCabe. The tables combine vintage windows with botanic and other prints and a variety of painted finishes.

Ms. Constantine received her formal design training at the New York School of Interior Design after which she worked for Dorothy Draper/Carleton V Inc. in New York. Before moving to Andover in 1989, she spent three years in a Radcliffe seminars program where she studied design, art history and construction.

The other Andover designer, Karen Sugarman of Karen Sugarman Interiors, designed the ladies' sitting room. Ms. Sugarman is an allied member of the American Society of Interior Design.

The show house, which is located in Milton, is open for public viewing through May 22. Tickets are $15 at the door. Take Route 93 south to Exit 2B. Follow Route 138 about a mile and a quarter. Signs will be posted.

flu symptoms or minor cuts, although in need of medical attention, did not require immediate care. They had to wait until emergency cases were treated first. This led Ms. Kimball to an idea for an ambulatory care area within the department. Her development of this idea was instrumental in opening Lawrence General Hospital's Walk-in Center in 1984 exclusively for those patients with less serious conditions.

According to her nomination papers, "This employee's greatest attribute is her commitment to the patient."

Others cited her loyalty, hard work, care, dedication, energy and professionalism.

The President's Award is presented on a quarterly basis to any full- or part-time hospital employee who makes significant contributions toward the hospital's goals. It complements the hospital's Most Concerned Employee Award, which is given annually to an outstanding staff member. All employees are eligible to receive both awards and can be nominated by any employee or member of the medical staff.

St. John's celebrates its 125th

A Catholic community hospital founded by the priest who developed Father John's Medicine will celebrate the 125th anniversary of its chartering on May 27.

St. John's Hospital in Lowell was founded in 1867 and one of its immediate goals was to provide attention and specialized care to the Irish immigrants to Lowell from their native land, subsequent to the potato famine. Lowell was a bustling mill city in the 1800s and the need for a hospital to care for the mill workers of Irish extraction became evident to the Sisters of Notre Dame who operated a small hospice on Adams Street and to the Sisters of Charity who were assigned to St. Peter's Parish and were managing St. Peter's Orphan Asylum. Father John O'Brien, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, prevailed upon the Sisters of Charity and Sisters of Notre Dame. With the assistance of Archbishop Williams, they purchased property from the Nesmith family. Funds for the purchase came from a fair held in November 1866 in Huntington Hall under the auspices of the Sisters of St. Peter's Asylum.

A note from early Lowell history indicated that, "something was imperatively needed to care for the sick and the poor. Girls and women worked in the mills in large numbers and when they became sick or debilitated by hard work, they had little choice by Richard D. Hopgood, D.M.D.

Your Dental HEALTH

GUMMING UP THE WORKS

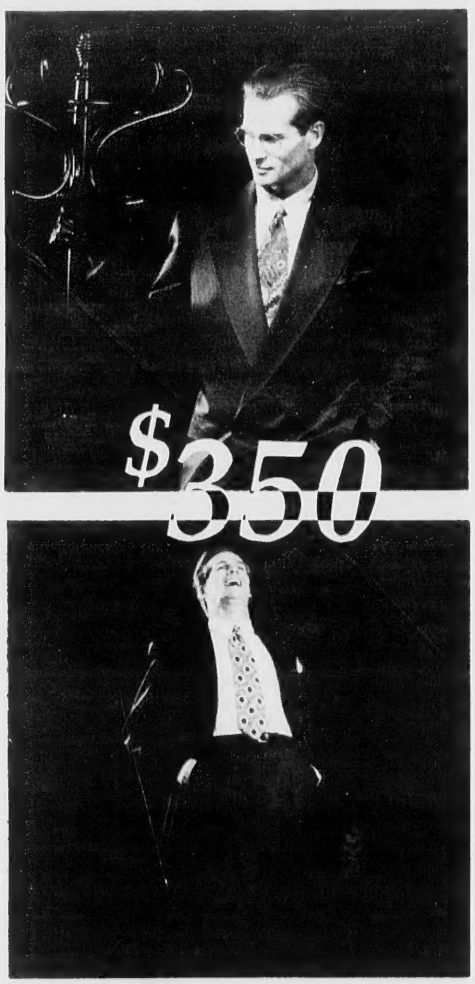

Have you heard the one about the man who goes to the dentist and is told that his teeth are fine, but his gums have to go? It's no joke. Periodontal (gum) disease is the largest single cause of tooth loss in persons over the age of 35. If pockets of bacteria are allowed to form and grow unchecked beneath the gumline, the potential exists for gum inflammation, loosened teeth, and even deterioration of the jawbone. What makes gum disease all the more insidious is the fact that patients are seldom aware of its presence in its initial stages. Their first indications may be bleeding gums, gum recession, and/ or tenderness. When these symptoms are observed, a patient has 32 reasons, one for each tooth, to visit the dentist.

There is no magic to avoiding gum disease and achieving dental hygiene success. Almost everyone can do it with a modest amount of time invested daily. Keep up with home dental care as well as periodic cleanings and checkups. Your teeth and gums are depending on you, and you can depend on me for complete dental care, with the gentle touch. I have office hours Mon & Thur 10-8, Tues & Fri 8-6, & by appointment, at 296 Lowell Street, Rt 133, with easy access off Rt 93 (475-2431).

P.S. Gingivitis (inflammation of the gums) is a reversible condition.

but to accept the charity of the state or city almshouses. It was the same with the sick poor, who either had no homes of their own or were unable to pay for proper care and medical attendance when sickness overtook them." History also states the hospital opened for business May 1, 1887, and before the end of the month there were 24 patients.

Today St. John's Hospital is a 241-bed, non-profit community hospital and one of the largest and busiest in the Merrimack Valley.

Its physical plant, with the oldest structure built in the mid-1960s, is one of the newest and technologically advanced of any community hospital in Massachusetts.

In 1991, the hospital dedicated a new ambulatory surgery center, a 600-vehicle parking garage and the five-story Brendan D. Leahey, M.D. Medical Office Building.

Anniversary activities will center around a May 27th Ecumenical Service of Praise and Thanksgiving at the Immaculate Conception Church at 6 p.m. The public is invited. Music will be provided by the Immaculate Conception Church Choir, directed by Eileen Donahue. A Processional will be headed by area clergy, the Sisters of St. Martha, hospital trustees, administration and employees of St. John's Hospital and Nursing Home, retirees, representatives of the Ladies of St. John's, St. John's Men's Guild and Friends of St. John's Nursing Home.

Participating in the ecumenical service will be the Rev. Francis D. Hassett, O.M.I., pastor, Immaculate Conception Church; Sister Margaret MacFarlane, C.S.M., assistant general superior, Sisters of St. Martha; Allan L. Levine, past president, Temple Beth-El and a trustee of St. John's Medical Center; the Rev. John P. Sarantos, pastor, Transfiguration Greek Orthodox Church; the Rev. Lloyd H. Dunham, pastor, Christ Church United; the Rev. Thomas J. Reddy, O.M.I., editor of The Oblate World and former pastor at the Immaculate Conception Church and trustee, St. John's Medical Center; Daniel J. O'Connor, Jr. M.D., president, St. John's Medical Center; and Rabbi Jonah S. Layman, Temple Beth-El.

An international "Salute to St. John's Hospital Reception" at the Sheraton Inn-Lowell will follow the service. Honored guests will include Sister M. Consolata MacDonald, C.S.M., the Sisters of St. Martha's first administrator at St. John's, and Sister Maria Loyola, C.S.M., who served as president from 1967 until her retirement in 1991.

Former chairmen of the medical center's board of trustees and former presidents of the hospital's medical staff will be introduced by the present chairman of the medical center's board of trustees, Elkin B. McCallum.

Further information on the anniversary events is available from the hospital's public relations office.

Serving as chairperson for the anniversary is Mrs. Edward H. Quinn, chairman of the trustees public relations committee. Her committee includes hospital employees Susan Butterfield, Gale Cogan, John Crowley, Charles Gordon, Sister Simone Roach, C.S.M., and Bernard Streeter. Also serving on the committee is James F. O'Donnell, Jr., past president of St. John's Men's Guild.

Golfers benefit anti-drug efforts

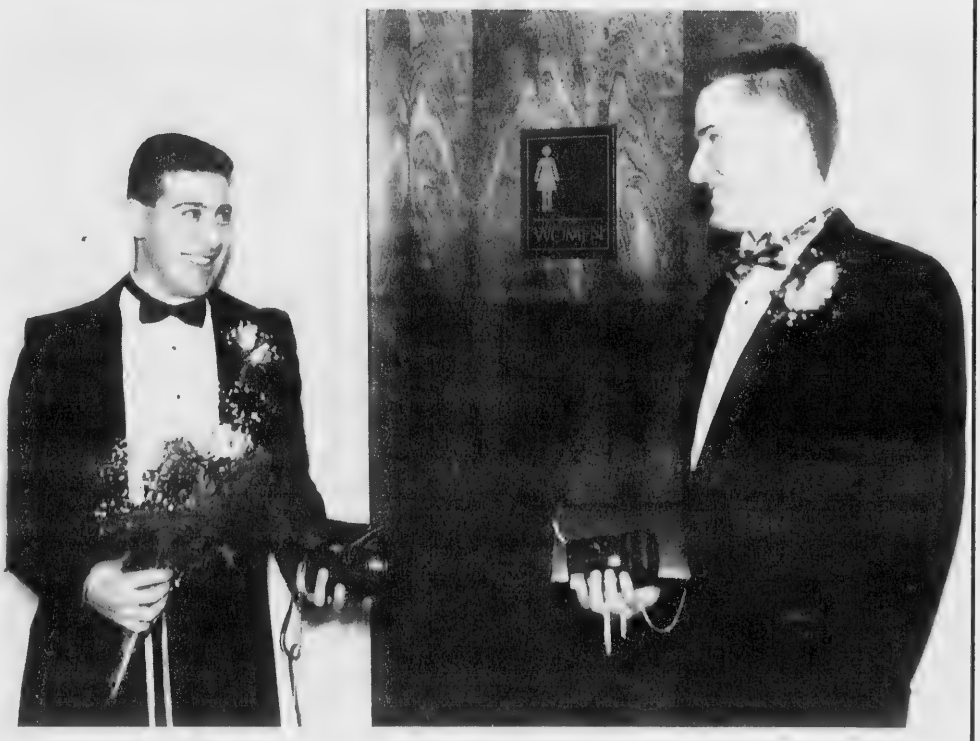

The Department of Community Services will join Andover's ASK Team in sponsoring its fourth annual golf classic, the Andover Service Open, at the Crystal Springs Golf Club in Haverhill Wednesday, June 24.

Proceeds of this and past tournaments are donated to youth drug and alcohol prevention programs in the Andover school system, including Project Charlie, Students Against Drunk Driving, Kids for Kids and Parent to Parent.

Individuals and businesses can support the event by sponsoring a tee, making a donation or playing in the tournament.

Call Brenda O'Brien at the school department at 470-3800, Ext. 368.

Listening to stories of political repression

By Heather McNemar

As Andover High students entered the school on the morning of May 11 they were greeted by the sight of a giant candle announcing the start of Human Rights Week.

In an effort to educate students about human rights violations around the world, the Andover High chapter of Amnesty International organized a week of activities that would be fun as well as educational.

The week began on a compelling note as Temba and Vuyelwa Maqubela, a couple from South Africa who now live in Andover, talked about human rights abuses in their native country.

The Maqubelas came to the United States from Botswana in 1986 and now live at Phillips Academy, where he is a chemistry teacher and she coordinates a program that brings South African students to the United States to study.

Playful People ends the season

A weekly play group in North Andover will meet for the last time this season Thursday, May 28. However, Playful People will get together for a brief meeting after play group Thursday, May 21, at 11 a.m.

The group meets at Trinitarian Congregational Church on Elm Street.

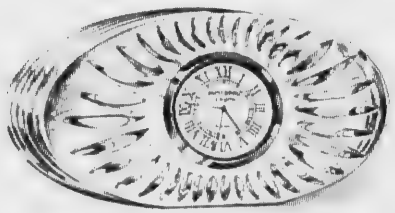

"Yes, it was another successful year," says Julie Mangano, this year's volunteer coordinator. "The fact that our play group has been going strong for 10 years shows that we fill a real need. Mothers of preschoolers are looking for a suitable place to go, especially during the winter months."

Children have a chance to interact with other children, and the parents can meet other adults with small children. Preregistration is not required, and the weekly charge of $1 per person just covers expenses, Ms. Mangano said.

She thanked the many parents who donated their time this year. "Since this play group is run by the parents themselves, it benefits tremendously from many parents taking turns bringing snacks, setting up, or cutting craft shapes out of paper."

Parents who want to get more involved may call Ms. Mangano at 686-7525.

Fair-goers win raffle prizes

The American Field Service Club at Andover High School recently held a raffle at Crafts in The Park.

Raffle tickets were sold for an "International Basket" that included donations from Driscoll's Package Store, Regina Gifts, Shawsheen Liquors, Butler's Pantry, Thompson's, Waldenbooks and the Strawberry Tree.

Gift certificates were donated by Bella Vista, Cactus Jacks, the Jade and Pasta Villagio restaurants.

Janetta Santallo, an AFS foreign student from Finland, drew the winning ticket. The winner was Anne Edgerly of Lincoln Circle.

The club also sold AFS buttons and flags from foreign countries. The club members recently completed a short-term exchange with students from Livingston, N.J., where they appeared on a TV panel show at the local cable station.

Contributing to these projects were this year's officers: Layne Whitley, president; Brandon Holley, vice president; Valerie Gould, secretary; and Julie Cutler, treasurer.

Janetta Santallo, an exchange student from Finland, holds the winning ticket for the "International Basket." Toasting the winner, Anne Edgerly of Andover, are Julie Cutler and Brandon Holly, club officers.

In 1991 AFS exchanged more than 9, 000 students and 700 teachers. With a volunteer force exceeding 100,000, AFS is one of the world's largest international volunteer organizations.

"When we bring these young people to our community, we become hosts to tomorrow's leaders," Ms. Whitley said.

Students learn about repression

Mr. Maqubela spoke about his arrest in South Africa when he was a high school student and his subsequent journey to Botswana, Nigeria, and finally the United States.

The Maqubelas told of life in exile where they feared attacks by the South African government and were forced to move around every night because of raids on refugees. The couple was forced to make a hiding place for their 6-month-old son to ensure his safety when the authorities came for them.

Students wanted to know whether things had improved under President F.W. de Klerk and what they could do to help the situation in South Africa. The Maqubelas said some things are better, but until blacks are given the right to vote, improvement is limited.

When they returned to South Africa this winter, the Maqubelas found segregation was still in force when they were refused the use of bathrooms. The Maqubelas also stressed the disparity in education for blacks and whites. They said that one thing students could do is to send books to South Africa because they are desperately needed.

Human Rights Week continued on Tuesday with a write-a-thon in the library. Amnesty International works to free prisoners of conscience, who are imprisoned simply for their beliefs, and works to secure a fair trial for all prisoners and protect them from torture. Students wrote letters to the governments of Tunisia, the Ukraine and Peru, urging leaders to either release prisoners or treat them fairly.

The high school was visited by a Haitian woman living in Boston on Thursday. The woman discussed the recent immigration of thousands of Haitian refugees after the overthrow of the popularly elected government by a violent coup. The coup government committed human rights violations, and a majority of the refugees were fleeing these abuses, not coming for economic reasons.

A speaker at Andover High tells students about human rights in Haiti.

The speaker said that the American media promoted the idea that all the refugees were economic refugees, and that the U.S. government did not interview the refugees thoroughly enough.

She urged students to write to the U.S. government and tell them to help bring the popularly elected government back to Haiti.

The week concluded with a concert on Friday afternoon. The band Guy Smiley and Spanish teacher Bill Kolbe entertained the crowd with music, and Amnesty members distributed information on human rights.

"The week was strengthened by the very powerful speakers whose personal experiences with the subject of human rights made their stories very moving," said Laura Morrissey, one of the coordinators of the Amnesty chapter at the high school. "I hope this week becomes a tradition at Andover High School."

Michael Conway

Mark Twain wrote:

"It could probably be shown by facts and figures that there is no distinctly native American criminal class—except Congress."

The Rubbergate scandal seems to prove his point.

296 congressmen kited checks, without paying a penalty. In effect, they were getting interest-free loans.

They made out like bandits.

But Rubbergate is just one of many scandals in Congress.

Ticket-fixing. Not paying restaurant bills. Reported drug dealing and embezzlement in the House post office. Free gym privileges. Government staffers used as chauffeurs. Junketing to vacation spots. Hideaway government resorts. Free computers for personal use. Tax-paid mass mailings. Use of government staff for campaign purposes. Discount barber shop and beauty salon. Late-night pay raises to $125,000. Secret bonanza increases in congressional pensions.

I'm running for Congress because I'm tired of these privileged princes of perks and pork . . . I'm fed up with the way they put politics ahead of problem-solving, and then laugh all the way to the bank.

It's time for honesty, for a change.

And it's time to re-define how our congressman should represent us in the 1990s.

Here are some of the specific planks in my platform:

1. As congressman, I would set a new example.

If elected, I will reimburse the Treasury for perks and benefits not available to the average citizen.

2. I will not seek re-election beyond eight years.

I support term limitations.

3. I will end the tax-paid propaganda of mass mailings.

I will correspond by mail with individual constituents, of course, but Atkins has wasted over a million tax dollars on puff pieces to promote his own image and re-election. I will use this savings to expand constituent service—to help individuals solve problems and to help local companies cut through bureaucratic red tape.

4. I will urge area businesses to "adopt a classroom."

Teachers often have great ideas to inspire students creatively, but they often lack the basic resources—art supplies, computers, whatever—to carry out a project idea. Local businesses would be happy to help, if they are asked.

5. I will urge urban schools to create an after-hours "curriculum of hope."

I will ask successful executives, athletes, artists, and other role models to talk to students about how hard work pays off in the real world. Most of these students never get a chance to learn the practical skills of: how to look for a job, how to prepare for a job interview, how to keep a job, how to win promotion . . . Many urban students need role models, practical advice, inspiration, and above all, hope.

6. I will work as a catalyst for economic development in our district.

I would concentrate on the following: a) attract new businesses to our area, b) work with community leaders in the three major cities to revitalize and rebuild, c) use my district offices to help unemployed residents connect with potential employers, d) urge area industry to expand programs for job-retraining, e) encourage area businesses to offer apprenticeships for high school graduates, and f) help our struggling entrepreneurs cut through red tape.

If you review my platform, you'll discover a common theme:

I put my faith in hometown solutions, not Washington politics.

I believe we need to face the truth: problems here at home are not going to be solved in Washington. And they're not going to be solved by any one leader.

The truth is, we need to work harder and more creatively in our hometowns. And we need a congressman who will use his staff, offices and power as a catalyst for economic growth and as a catalyst for improving our schools.

Do you support this approach?

Do you think Congress is failing us?

Do you think Chester Atkins should find a job in the private sector for the first time in his life?

If so, I ask for your help.

I ask you to send my campaign as generous a contribution as you can, to help me get my larger message to voters:

Hometown solutions, not Washington politics.

Thank you,

Michael Conway

Why I don't have my poem

It was just an average day; I was walking on my way,

Walking home from school. I had no time to fool.

I looked up and saw a light. It nearly blinded my eyesight.

When the light beamed me up in a minute or two;

I just didn't know what I was going to do.

Soon I was up in the ship. Was I being held by an invisible grip?

The one who came toward me looked like a gnome. He wanted to take my homework poem and put it on his captain's refrigerator at home.

So now you know why I don't have a poem.

Margaret Litvin named Presidential Scholar

Phillips Academy senior Margaret Litvin, daughter of Yuri and Maria Litvin, was designated a Presidential Scholar.

She is among the 28th class of Presidential Scholars named by President George Bush and U.S. Education Secretary Lamar Alexander.

The national program recognizes student achievement in academics and the arts. The 141 winners include one young man and one young woman from each state, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and U.S. families living abroad, as well as 15 at-large and 20 scholars in the arts.

"President Bush's America 2000 education strategy specifically calls for presidential recognition of distinguished academic achievement," Mr. Alexander said. "These Presidential Scholars are being honored for both their hard work in the classroom and for their involvement in their schools and communities. They are representative of America's best."

Since 1983, each Presidential Scholar has been asked to name the teacher who has had the [illegible]

Ms. Litvin was selected for this honor on the basis of Scholastic Aptitude Test or American College Test, essays, school recommendations and transcripts.

The advisory group also considered her broad academic achievement, leadership, character and commitment to ideals.

Understanding Chiropractic

by Mark F. DeLorenzo, D.C.

FOR ALL OUTWARD APPEARANCES

A person who displays normal posture will touch a wall in three places when standing with his or her back against the wall. Because the spine displays four natural curves (forward curves at the neck and lower back, and backward curves at the center back and sacrum), the back of the head, mid back, and buttocks are all predisposed to touch the wall. Failure to touch the wall with these areas of the body may show up as poor posture and decreased biomechanical efficiency. Less obvious effects of poor posture are compressed lungs and other organs, leading to shallow breathing, faulty digestion, poor elimination and decreased energy. The chiropractor knows that the outward appearance of poor bearing is likely to indicate the inward impairment of organ functions.

We can help to correct posture problems in many cases and to prevent them, too. It is especially important to check children at an early age. For an evaluation, please call DELORENZO CHIROPRACTIC GROUP, 475-5042, for an appointment. Our office is located at 15 Central Street. Have a happy and safe Memorial Day.

P.S. An exaggerated lumbar (lower back) curve, commonly referred to as "swayback," can encourage inner organs to sag in a "pot belly."

Clown Town attracts thousands

day event, but officers of the organization put the figure between 3,500 and 5,000.

The biggest money makers at Clown Town were the games that the organization owns, such as baseball throw, fishing pond, spin art and golf. The Andona Society got to keep the $1,400 made on those games.

On the other arcade games and carnival rides, run by LMC Amusements of Wilmington, the Andona Society received 25 cents on each dollar spent, Ms. Hanson said.

The pony rides, which accompanied a petting zoo, didn't make as much money as organizers had hoped, she said. It cost Andona $650 to get the pony ride and petting zoo people for Clown Town. For the attraction to make money, more than 650 would have had to have paid the $1 admission.

The Andona Society raised money even before the day of Clown Town. Members sold advertising space to local businesses. The group sold $4,480 worth of ads and cleared $2,300 profit, Ms. Hanson said.

Other off-the-top expenses included two police officers and two custodians, in addition to $700 to rent tables; $135 to rent space at the Senior Center and Memorial Auditorium at Doherty Middle School, for the Confetti Kids show; and $100 to have the Red Cross stand by for first-aid services.

Private donations helped defray costs for some of the attractions. One donation was a raffle prize. For $1 kids bought a chance to win a night as a ball boy or girl for a Boston Celtics basketball game.

The raffle winner was 13-year-old Ross Fenton, son of Kathleen and Ross Fenton of 50 Salem St.

THE REAL ESTATE CORNER

HOW TO REMEMBER WHAT YOU'VE SEEN

You've just spent the entire day looking for a new home, and now it's all become one giant blur. Which house had the great dark room? Was it the same one with the small kitchen? You saw so much that you can't remember anything! Many of us have experienced this when we were new to real estate and, subsequently, we developed little tricks to help us remember the thousands of properties we see each year which can help you too!

Carry a notebook with you when you're house-hunting, and give each house its own page. On the top, note the address and price. Next, write down the exterior construction, style and color. Note the color of the living room carpet and walls and any other major feature that will jar your memory when you get home. Some people nickname houses – "the white cat house" or "copper pots house" – anything to help you retain a mental picture of the property. This will help you to recap the day with the agent and give him or her important feedback that will speed up the search for the perfect home!

For professional advice on all aspects of buying or selling real estate, talk to the experts at Century 21 Minuteman Realty. Come by our office at 2 Elm Square, or give us a call at 475-1243.

Church turns 75

More than 400 turned out to wish Sts. Constantine and Helen Church a happy 75th anniversary last weekend.

"It went beautifully," said Elaine Kevgas, general chairwoman of the event, who added that, although she is "exhausted, ... It was worth it."

The church was standing room only Sunday when Archbishop Iakovos, primate of the Greek Orthdox Church of North and South America, performed a divine liturgy.

The liturgy was co-officiated by Bishop Methodios of Boston.

The two were assisted by the Rev. Dr. George A. Karahalios, pastor of Sts. Constantine and Helen, and former pastors.

"It was a memorable experience, especially for the young children who have never seen (the archbishop), but only read about him in books," Ms. Kevgas said.

Sts. Constantine and Helen Greek Orthodox Church of Greater Lawrence and Southern New Hampshire was founded by a group of Greek immigrants in Lawrence. Their dream became a reality in 1917.

Christ Church discusses finances

Parishioners of Christ Episcopal Church will hold a special meeting to discuss the church's short staff.

The single-agenda item Sunday, May 31, will be current staff and the ability to maintain the church's current standard of pastoral care.

The meeting will start at 11:30 a.m. in the Parish Hall.

"The first five months of 1992 have made it clear to those of us on the vestry that our parish is facing a serious dilemma," said Rector James A. Diamond in a recent letter to parishioners.

"We have come to expect high standards of ministry, especially the response of clergy for pastoral care."

Rev. Diamond said the church cannot maintain these standards with one full-time priest and a less than half-time assistant.

During the fall solicitation for stewardship, one of the goals was to raise the pledging base to employ a full-time, ordained assistant, according to Rev. Diamond.

"We were not able to reach that pledge level," he said.

He attributed the shortfall to what he called the vestry's commitment "to the principle of a balanced program and property budget."

Sgt. Bernhardt taken ill at court

By Don Staruk

Sgt. John Bernhardt, the police department's court officer, was taken from Lawrence District Court to Lawrence General Hospital by ambulance last Wednesday, May 13, after passing out and suffering chest pains.

"Apparently he did lose some consciousness and didn't remember (falling) when he woke up," Lt. Kevin Lynch said this week.

Sgt. Bernhardt, 53, a 22-year veteran of the force, was transferred to Lahey Clinic in Burlington, where his regular doctor is practicing, for tests on Friday to determine whether he had a heart problem or what else it was that caused his problem.

He was released over the weekend, but was scheduled for more tests this week.

Police were not sure when Sgt. Bernhardt would be abie to return to work.

Sgt. Barbara Connolly has taken over his court duties.

If Sgt. Bernhardt is not able to return to work right away, he will join three other officers out on long-term disability.

Patrolman Fred Sunderland, union secretary, has been out on disability since 1988 for emotional stress.

Patrolman Thomas Siopes, union president, has been out since Nov. 29, 1991, when he suffered chest pains and had catheter surgery to clear blockage in his arteries.

Patrolman Frank Froburg has been out since September with a back problem and has since had a disc operation.

League elects Virginia Cole its president

Cole's Hardware store on Main Street, where Gentry and the Athlete's Corner are now located, for more than 20 years.

"I guess because I always did the bookkeeping for my husband's business (the League) put me on the board of directors right away," she said of her first election to a LWV post in 1952.

Mrs. Cole believes this will be the first time a League president has been re-elected.

"Usually another woman is named president. I don't think there is a written rule about not having the same president re-elected. It just hasn't worked out that way," she said.

When the Coles moved to Andover in 1952, Mrs. Cole was looking after her three small children and she wanted to make new friends. She was becoming discouraged.

"I was tired of finding women to talk to who only were interested in diapers. I knew there had to be some intelligent young women out there who were interested in social and political issues," she said jokingly.

One of the many things Mrs. Cole likes about the LWV is that any woman can join. She doesn't have to be invited or sponsored by another member.

"You don't have to be super smart to join. That is a big misconception. You just have to be interested in issues," she said.

Mrs. Cole said although this newcomer majority had good intentions, some members alienated a lot of people in town offices, including former town manager Ken Mahony.

After her two years as LWV president she returned to the board, but then resigned in 1967 to run for a seat on the School Committee. She was elected to the School Committee and served for two, three-year terms. She was defeated when she ran for reelection to a third term.

Membership is down

During the '60s, Mrs. Cole said the Andover LWV had approximately 200 members. Today the membership has dropped below 100, she said.

Virginia Cole

One of her first priorities as league president will be to increase the membership, she said.

Mrs. Cole recognized that the increasing demands on women's time has had an effect on the membership. But, she notes, the League has always had both morning and evening meetings to accommodate members' schedules.

During the '80s, there was a large growth in the town's population. Mrs. Cole said the number of newcomers outweighed the long-time members who understood how Andover town government works.

Mrs. Cole said although this newcomer majority had good intentions, some members alienated a lot of people in town offices, including former town manager Ken Mahony.

"It got so bad that he used to say out loud when he saw some of (the League members) coming, 'Here comes the League of Women bitches.' Some of these (new) people were very outspoken. They'd bust into offices at town hall and demand copies of reports. They generally made pests of themselves," Mrs. Cole said.

It was during this time, she believes, that many women left the League. Many of them haven't returned, according to Mrs. Cole.

"After stirring up a hornet's nest, many of those women have either moved out of town or are no longer involved with the League," she said.

Mrs. Cole believes holding more "discussion" meetings on issues will attract both new members and reactivate those who have been less involved.

Discussion meetings center on issues on which the national League has taken a position, as well as those that are new. According to Mrs. Cole, the national League has positions on almost every issue that affects the lives of people in the United States, from health care and domestic violence to civil and reproductive rights.

Study groups on the local level research issues and report their individual League positions to the state League. The 50 state Leagues then meet once a year to review local Leagues' work and come to a consensus and state the national League position.

State and local Leagues may lobby the national League on issues about which they disagree. But individual Leagues may not lobby against national positions, said Mrs. Cole. If a local League has come to a consensus that differs with the national position, it must remain quiet, she said.

Some issues, such as a woman's right to choose to terminate an unwanted pregnancy, have created a lot of discourse within the local League, Mrs. Cole said. The Nation League of Women Voters supports a woman's right to choose.

At a local meeting in 1973, when the country was in heated discussion on the Roe vs. Wade abortion question, the Andover League experienced some outside pressure akin to the type the national League received.

Mrs. Cole said the local Catholic church sent a group of nuns to a discussion meeting on the right to choose. All League meetings are open to the public, but non-League members are not allowed to vote on the issues, she said.

"I was very angry. They didn't say anything. They were just there supposedly to put pressure on the women who were there to discuss the issue freely. It made for a very uncomfortable atmosphere," she said.

Nothing like that has happened since, Mrs. Cole said, but she believes by holding more discussion meetings the Andover League will be able to reactivate members and attract new women to the organization.

(By the way. Mrs. Cole said men can be members, too. Approximately 10 years ago, the League voted to admit men. In Andover, there are very few men in the League.)

Here's how to join the League of Women Voters

The Andover League of Women Voters is looking for new members. The League is a non-partisan organization of women whose goal is to promote political responsibility through informed and active participation in government.

For more information on the Andover chapter contact Melissa Danish, 34 Enmore St.

The national League of Women Voters was established in 1920 to help women, who had just been given the right to vote, learn about the issues. The Andover LWV chapter was begun at the same time as the national chapter, said Virginia Cole, Andover LWV president.

According to Mrs. Cole, the League has many roles, including supplying information, building public opinion, supporting or opposing legislation. The League on the local, state and national levels does not support or oppose any political party or candidate.

The national League does vote, based on the consensus of state and local members, on various issues and takes a public stand.

League activity in Andover centers on the "unit meeting." Unit meetings are discussion and study groups in which members have the opportunity to learn about particular issues, discuss these issues with other members and form opinions about them.

There is a resource committee for each study item. It is the responsibility of each committee to gather, digest and organize the material on its subject and then lead a discussion and question-and-answer session at unit meetings. Usually, two unit meetings are held for the same subject, which provides members two opportunities to learn about the subject and voice their opinions.

After a study group has held a discussion meeting and a sense of agreement has been reached by voting members, the local League reports its consensus to the state League, which tabulates all local leagues' positions for the annual national meeting.

This year the national meeting will be held in Boston starting Friday, June 12, and running through Wednesday, June 17. Those at the National LWV meeting, which is comprised of state delegates who represent their state's consensus on issues, vote on the various topics discussed during the past year.

Former Black Panther Seale tells it like it is

'I'm trying to show you how I got unbrainwashed.'

'I heard Martin Luther King speak and it blew my mind. I heard Malcolm X speak and it blew my mind. I dropped my engineering major and went into social sciences.'

founding the Panthers, the recent Los Angeles riots, the 1965 riots in Watts and the environment.

Mixing street language including some raw swearing with getting into the voice of wealthy rich folk and police officers, Mr. Seale held the audience spell-bound for an hour and a half, when someone told him he'd have to stop speaking.

Mr. Seale said the Black Panther Party is incorrectly thought of as a militant group of blacks. He said he and Mr. Newton founded it to bring about social change for African Americans. He said that before 1962, he knew nothing about politics and African Americans. By reading and listening, talking and organizing, Mr. Seale learned that being black does not mean being inferior.

In the beginning

When Bobby Seale was in third grade, a teacher told him not to say "dem" and "dos," for them and those. Or, as he put it several times during his talk Friday: "Dis, dat, do, da, mo and fo," meaning "this, that those, the, more and for."

"You are speaking pidgin language," Mr. Seale said his teacher told him, and he would feel ashamed and like he was inferior.

But 12 years of research, which included some time when he was in college, told Mr. Seale that he came from the West Coast of Africa where the language had no sound for "th," "ar," "er," and no rolling "r."

Learning from heroes

"I heard Martin Luther King speak and it blew my mind," said Mr. Seale. "I heard Malcolm X speak and it blew my mind. I dropped my engineering major and went into social sciences."

He had an argument when he was in college, with a professor at Merrit College in Oakland, Calif., who constantly used the term "negroid."

"Africanoid would be more appropriate," said Mr. Seale, who pointed out that there is no country named "Negro."

Mr. Seale made the audience laugh, think, squirm and listen. Wearing a gray button-down shirt, pink necktie, khaki trousers and a white baseball hat with a very large black "X" on it, and looking younger than his self-avowed "way over 50 years of age," Mr. Seale spoke with passion. He swore, using the f-word liberally, and he talked about what it is like to be black in a society that is run by whites.

"Twenty-eight members of the Black Panther Party were killed, orchestrated by (former FBI Director) J. Edgar Hoover, rest his racist soul," said Mr. Seale. "J. Edgar Hoover hated our guts and Martin Luther King's guts and the Kennedys' guts."

He could imitate Huey Newton, who, said Mr. Seale, sounded very literate and deliberate, "like white folk," unlike Mr. Seale, who talks more with feeling and passion.

"I'm trying to show you how I got unbrainwashed," said Mr. Seale, dropping the names of books and authors, "material that was blowing my mind, just to know I wasn't inferior."

In 1965, Malcolm X was assassinated and the Watts riots occurred. That was the year Mr. Seale and Mr. Newton began working on forming the Black Panther Party. It was not formed to be militant, Mr. Seale told the PA audience. The two black men founded it to fulfill several goals. The Panthers wanted the power to determine their own destiny, decent housing, full employment for African Americans, a decent education that includes African-American history, "immediate end" to police brutality, no fighting in Vietnam and fairness in court.

He's a storyteller

Mr. Seale, now on the faculty of Temple University in Philadelphia, doing minority recruiting and working on the screen play for his 1968 book written from jail, Seize The Time, can tell a story. He described one evening in 1965 when "Huey and I got into a fight with the police because I recited a poem." It was an anti-war poem, "saying, 'I ain't going to go to your damn draft.'"

He said he started to recite the poem, on campus, in front of a large crowd.

"Some white boy comes out, blowing a joint," said Mr. Seale, who began to speak in the voice of the white "boy," who wanted Mr. Seale to stand up on a chair so he could be heard. Mr. Seale told the PA crowd that he told the California crowd that night, over and over again, "I will not serve."

"This white crew-cut kid says, 'You under arrest for using obscene language.' "

In language that isn't appropriate for a family newspaper, Mr. Seale told the PA crowd that he asked the crew-cut kid if he'd heard of freedom of speech.

Mr. Seale said the crowd was "going crazy," saying, "Leave him alone, he ain't done nothing.' "

"Then this guy in a yellow T-shirt charges at me in the stomach," said Mr. Seale. "Later, I found they were undercover cops."

Mr. Seale said, "I thought they was lynching me at the University of California/Berkeley."

But then Mr. Seale pulled out a knife and he cut a policeman. He was charged with assault and battery of a police officer.

By 1966, Mr. Newton was a first-year law student and he and Mr. Seale took to the streets with other Black Panthers, carrying tape recorders and law books to observe the police making arrests on the streets, so "they wouldn't commit acts of police brutality."

Mr. Seale said it was necessary to arm the Black Panthers, for self-defense. In his book, Seize The Time, Mr. Seal quotes Huey P. Newton about guns: "I'm standing on my constitutional rights. I'm not going to allow you to brutalize me. I'm going to stop you from brutalizing my people. You got your gun, pig, I got mine. If you shoot at me, I'm shooting back."

Mr. Seale also talked about the environment, how there are 5.4 billion human beings on Earth, when 100 years ago there were 1 billion people. Calling himself an "Earth citizen," he said we have to take care of the environment.

He said the recent Los Angeles riots mirrored the problems of the '60s in Watts. And he said the jury in the Rodney King case is "the same as the Bush-Reagan racist-framework Willie-Horton philosophy – They make all white folk scared of blacks."

RECYCLE

By Virginia Cole

In answer to a letter in last week's Townsman from Carol Hopkins, I really can't speak for the town but I would like to point out that the regulations she seemed to be objecting to, recycling of metal, glass, paper and yard refuse, are not in addition to the present recycling program with the exception of metal.

The regulations are set by the state by ordering incinerators (which is where we dispose of our trash) to stop taking various items. When the incinerator refuses leaves and old stoves and tin cans, provisions have always been made by the town for its residents. People now buying new large appliances can make arrangements with the seller to take the old ones away. Leaves can be composted at home or at the town's compost site and when the tin cans are refused, I feel sure the town will have an answer.

Andover is thinking ahead, trying to help the environment and obeying state regulations. These are not idle wishes of a small group of people.

What we refer to as tin cans are in reality steel cans with a thin coating of tin on the inside to prevent rusting. Manufacturing techniques over the years have reduced the amount of tin in these cans so there is now a larger market for them to be recycled along with other steel scraps. The Steel Can Recycling Institute, a trade group, says they can now be added to the mix in the steel mills without causing blemishes as too much tin may do.

This is good news for all of us in the Northeast where for a long time there were no de-tinning mills and transportation of tin cans to New Jersey was too expensive.

We will expect that by next year we will either have de-tinning mills or cans that can be recycled without de-tinning. Industry is now interested in recycling.

Don't lose your interest. The consumer must provide the raw materials.

World War II veterans

like it was a mask."

The bomb killed 150 and wounded 500 of his 3,000 crew mates.

"I lost a lot of friends," Mr. Seero said.

Mr. Seero, 69, of 8 Fox Hill Road, is one of eight Andover World War II veterans who will represent their respective branches of the service at this Monday's Memorial Day Services in Andover. This year's Memorial Day theme is the 50th anniversary of the United States' involvement in World War II.

Mr. Seero spent three years in the Navy, 1942-'45, his first year on PB4 patrol planes out of Iceland, spotting submarines for convoys crossing the Atlantic. He received the first of two Purple Hearts when he broke his arm and hand in a plane crash that killed half the 12-man crew.

In 1943 he was assigned to the USS Wasp and spent much of the next two years in the Pacific, seeing action at Okinawa, Luzon and Iwo Jima. He saw kamikaze pilots at Okinawa and at the "Marianas turkey shoot," where the task force he was with shot down 472 planes in one day.

"It was scary as hell because there was no defense against them," he said of the kamikazes. "The only thing you could do was try and blow them up."

He has a piece of the map from one kamikaze that blew up so close to the ship that pieces of the map came floating down like confetti. Another blew up right off the bow, killing three or four and injuring about 20 of his crew.

Mr. Seero came out of the war with 11 medals and 14 ribbons, including 10 Battle Stars and the two Purple Hearts.

Calvin C. Deyermond, 71, a lifelong resident of Andover who now lives in Salem, N.H., served in the Army Air Corps for five years, from 1940-1945.

"I flew with the 8th Air Force, B-24 bombers," Mr. Deyermond said.

He was a tail gunner flying bombing missions over Germany, "mostly up the Rhur Valley and the Rhine."

He sat hunched over in a small turret manning two 50-caliber machine guns. The space was so cramped he had to leave his parachute outside the door. His plane became the lead plane carrying the bomb sight, so they tried not to shoot because it would cause the sight to vibrate.

"But we fired our guns after the mission," although the enemy planes were usually too far away by then, he said.

The main targets were ball bearing factories. "Stuttgart was one of the big targets for us," he said.

His closest call was when his plane was hit by flak on a return trip to England. The hit took out an oil line, partially disabling the bomber.

His plane dropped back to the protection of the squadron and Mr. Deyermond said nothing ever looked so good as the White Cliffs of Dover. His plane flew just 100 feet high over the English Channel and made a "red-flare" emergency landing in England.

Mr. Deyermond received the Air Medal and four battle stars for his service over Germany.

Sidney N. Batchelder, 78, of 93 Argilla Road, served two stints with the U.S. Coast Guard, the first, 1936-'39, the second, 1942-'45.

"I got from Norfolk, Va., almost to Murmansk, Russia," Mr. Batchelder said. "Our main job was to break up weather stations in Greenland."

Mr. Batchelder's service was mostly in the Arctic Circle or close to it, including an island called Jan Mayen, 300 miles north of Iceland, where he worked with what was left of the Norwegian Army constructing a weather reconnaissance station.

His closest call came when his cutter was chasing a trawler and he kept seeing big splashes around the cutter. They figured the Nazis were filling ash cans with explosives and dropping them overboard with timed fuses. They finally scuttled the trawler and plucked its 35 crew members off the ice, one of whom had a camera. When they developed the film, there were pictures of a submarine and pictures of the trawler taken from the sub, and the Coast Guardsmen realized the splashes four days earlier hadn't been ash cans.

"It wasn't ash cans at all, it was torpedoes," Mr. Batchelder said. "It was our own little two-bit war, but somebody had to do it."

Mr. Batchelder will ride in a car Monday because of bad knees.

Fred Stott, 74, of 4 Robandy Road, received the Navy Cross, second only to the Medal of Honor, for his service with the Marine Corps on Saipan. He also took part in the major battles of Kwajalein, Tinian and Iwo Jima.

"I was in charge of a rifle platoon and ultimately a rifle company, which was infantry," Mr. Stott said. "They were all landing operations to take an island."

He received the Navy Cross for coordinating an attack in the early stages of the battle of Saipan.

"In warfare, things are terribly confused," he said.

He saw a way in which, if coordinated, tanks and riflemen could advance a good distance across the lower end of the island, and helped put the plan into action.

"It really established the beach head," Mr. Stott said.

He was injured his second day on Saipan when a tank in which he was riding was hit by a Japanese field gun. He was able to get out of the turret and jump to safety. On Iwo Jima he was trying to coordinate an infantry attack and was running zig-zag style from shell hole to shell hole when he was hit by a knee mortar, breaking his leg. He earned two Purple Hearts for his injuries.

"I was lucky; neither one was serious," Mr. Stott said.

Mr. Stott said his greatest war story was that he was engaged in battle for eight to 10 days on Iwo Jima, and "never once saw a live Japanese."

"Military life is 95 percent boredom and occasional moments of terror," he said.

Dorothy A. Volker, 66, of 13 Washington Ave., forged her birth certificate, making her the required 20 years old instead of 18, when she enlisted with the Women's Army Corps in 1944. She was picked right out of basic training to be part of a show called "Shot from the City," which traveled across the United States selling war bonds and recruiting people into defense work.

"I had a great job. I was in 35 states in 14 months," Ms. Volker said. "It was great fun."

The show operated like a carnival, setting up in a city, staying from two or three days to a week, then breaking down and moving on to the next city. It featured parts of German "Junka" planes and an entire Japanese "zero" fighter plane.

The show started in Washington, D.C., and included Boston and Chicago. Part of the work included cleaning up after the show and Ms. Volker likes telling her kids that during the war, "I swept the streets of Chicago."

She was a bit embarrassed to admit that the WACs who participated in the show were chosen for their looks.

"We stood around all the exhibits and answered questions," she said.

Doris E. St. Jean, 68, of 143 Chestnut St., served in the Women's Accepted Volunteer Emergency Services, working in the technical information department of the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics in Washington, D.C.

"I was a secretary to a captain and two commanders. It was special intelligence," Ms. St. Jean said. "I couldn't tell anybody what I was doing at the time. My brother was on an aircraft carrier and I knew where it was, but I couldn't tell my parents."

She joined when she was 20 and served from 1944-'46.

"My sister (Ruth) had gone in and I wanted to go in too," she said.

She and her friend, Mary McDonald, from Lawrence, joined together, went to Washington together and are still close friends.

"I met a lot of wonderful people. I was very proud to be able to serve my country," Ms. St. Jean said.

Grace Hatch, 78, of 116 Wild Rose Drive, served 20 years in the Army Nurse Corps, from 1941 to 1961. She joined because she was 28, tired of living in New York City and wanted to take a break for a year.

"But before the year was up, we were at war. Dec. 7 came along and I was in for the duration," Ms. Hatch said.

She served in Panama and Puerto Rico ("Too hot and too many bugs."), before heading to the Pacific and Saipan and Iwo Jima. Ms. Hatch was one of the first six nurses on Iwo Jima and spent eight months there.

"We went in originally so that we could set up a big general hospital, getting ready for the invasion of Japan, which fortunately never happened," she said.

She did two tours in Germany after the war before retiring in 1961.

David G. Roberts, 70, of 76 Wild Rose Drive, was an Army infantry sergeant in World War II who participated in the invasion of Normandy.

He also was in battles in northern France, the Rhineland and central Europe, and received the Purple Heart for wounds he received in combat.

A good solution

Police, property owners, town and school officials and parents worked out a good solution in the teen-agers-paint-part-of-the-town-with-graffiti mess.

Last week, some of the 15 juveniles and two adults (anyone older than 16) who admitted they were responsible for the ugly defacing of both public and private property were out painting over the graffiti. The town could have pressed charges against the 17 vandals, but instead slapped them with 20 hours of community service.

Talking with the youths who did the painting makes us believe that they are learning more by repairing their mistakes than in dealing with police charges.

Matt said, "At least I admitted I did it." Good point.

Carrie said she would be upset if the gazebo were defaced with graffiti again soon. Good. We will be, too.

Another girl, middle-school age, said the newspaper should note that she will never paint graffiti again. Excellent.

Andrea said the students did it because they were stupid at the time. All of us have been stupid, most likely more than once.

These kids also have realized that when a few do something wrong, many are blamed for the misdeeds. In this case, Andover High School students say they got blamed for something the middle-school students did.

And then there is the lesson the students may have learned about trashed property. Matt said, "When I wrote on it, at the time I didn't even think of it as breaking the law because the thing was already totally trashed." Exactly. One trashing leads to another and soon, an entire area can look terrible.

It was one very classy evening

By Perry Colmore Catlin

I went to quite a party last week. The food was the best I've had in a long time. In fact, I haven't seen such an array of excellent food since I went to the opening of Faneuil Hall in Boston in the mid-'70s.

In the beginning of last week's evening, there was very classy chamber music. In the second half of the evening, an excellent jazz band entertained us. The company was especially stimulating.

The party was hosted by Andover Central Business District Committee. It was "A Taste of Andover," the first annual business recognition evening. I am very happy with the event's secondary name because it implies that the party will be held again next year.

In fact, I had so much fun I made the mistake of suggesting to Bunny Maren, who with Peter Mullett was co-chairperson of the event, that we hold such an evening three or four times a year. It was mistake only because Ms. Maren had put in so much work for "A Taste of Andover" that it was too difficult to think right away of doing it again.

Perhaps next time the theme could be clothes instead of food, as it was this time. That way, some other businesses could do more of the work and enjoy the exposure of their goods.

The event was put together by the Central Business District Committee to welcome and recognize businesses that are new here and businesses that have expanded.

There was a feeling of success to the evening. The food was elegant and the presentation of the food creative. (Nick Valhouli from Petro's had palm trees made of carrots with knife carvings to look like bark and tops made of green peppers; the Andover Marriott had an ice sculpture of an American eagle adorning its table). Tables full of donated food from area restaurants included shrimp wrapped in pea pods, eggplant marinated with other vegetables, desserts that must have kept most of us up late that evening, and more, more.

Also contributing to the up feeling was the conversation. There were several new business people at the party, people who decided to locate their businesses here in Andover because they expect this is a place where they will be successful. Business people were talking about the fact that business is improving. I heard a realtor say business is good. I heard someone who is involved with women's clothing say people are spending more money. I heard a man who has opened a store here say he'd been to a recent 7:30 a.m. business meeting and 30 people were there. "Where I come from, you'd never find 30 people at a business meeting at that hour," he said.

All in all, it looked very encouraging.

The prom rules at Dedham High School stirred quite some discussion in our office. In case you didn't read the story, a female student wants to go to the prom and take a female friend. The two are not gay. The high school says they cannot go together unless they are gay. The law doesn't allow the school to discriminate

Let kids deal with drunk kids

Editor, Townsman:

As we all know, drinking is a major part of Andover High's social life. As much as parents and cops try to stop it, it will always be there, that is, if we are here.

Almost every weekend, a party is broken up due to alcohol being present. I was at one of those parties and I was so shocked when the cops said, "Either leave or we'll call your parents."

Now, we don't know one kid who's going to give a cop his/her phone number while having been drinking. Kids were running in every direction and a majority of them got behind the wheel totally intoxicated. Most of the time, when someone drinks, he plans on sleeping at the party or staying late enough to get sober before driving home.

This situation just shows how cops influence drunk driving. No, no one I know has been killed in an accident due to drunk driving, but why should it even have to happen when he/she could be sitting in someone's house sobering up?

We feel cops need to realize what they're doing and just let the person who's having the party deal with his/her friends. At least they can protect their lives rather than endangering them.

Teacher writes about editorial

Editor, Townsman:

Your editorial of May 14, "Sick days and substitutes cost us too much," is based on several inaccurate assertions, which need clarification.

Let's start with the first sentence: "No one wants to pick on teachers." In fact, for many politicians and much of the media, it's open season on teachers. As I write this, the Legislature is considering proposals by Gov. Weld to strip teachers of tenure and seniority rights and many of the hard-won benefits of the past 25 years. And it has become all too common for schools to be blamed for problems that are the result of societal ills: broken families, drug and alcohol abuse, etc.

In Andover, teachers are "picked on" by having to contend with a school budget that's been reduced by more than $4..5 million in the last four years, forcing larger class sizes and fewer support staff (librarians, technology instructors, guidance counselors and instructional aides).

Your assertions about teacher sick days are equally misleading.

First of all, to base your conclusion that a six-day average is excessive on a "survey" of three of your employees trivializes the whole question and insults teachers.

To begin seriously to evaluate the Andover substitute teachers account, we should note that substitute costs rose $22,932 over last year. This can be explained in two ways:

1. In the past year, a number of Andover teachers suffered long-term illness; two passed away. These teachers were able to avail themselves of the Andover Education Association's sick leave bank, into which Andover teachers each donate one of their unused sick days, to be used by colleagues who use up their sick days due to long-term illness. The total cost incurred by the sick leave bank depletion was $24,370 this year.

2. A second variable which must be considered is the 5 percent raise (well deserved) which substitute teachers received in January. However, even with this raise, the short-term substitute account is $1,100 less than last year.

To speculate that sick day use might decline with a "free lunch" or an extra vacation day is again insulting and simply irresponsible. You don't treat serious illness with a free lunch.

Andover taxpayers deserve more serious consideration of the problems which beset their schools. And Andover teachers deserve an apology.

High School did a good job

The following letter was sent to AHS Principal Tim Thomas.

Dear Tim,

Recently, my colleague, Marc Saunders, and I had the great pleasure of presenting a workshop on the development of community service courses in collaboration with two Andover High faculty members, Dave Gangi and Jay Darrin, and four Andover students, who are members of your community service program (Diane, Dana, Kevin and Anna). The workshop was well received and the credit for this goes to the enthusiastic presentations given by these young people and their dynamic faculty advisers.

Since this was a national conference, there were participants from around the country present and we received many compliments on the innovative ideas and open and friendly manner of all the presenters. It is always more credible for teachers, administrators and students to receive information about new techniques from practitioners in the field and it was wonderful that Andover High School was so well represented at this conference. The Thomas Jefferson Forum is particularly proud of its association with Andover High School and this gave us a unique chance to share the results of this collaboration with educators interested in the concept of "service learning."

The whole Andover High School community should be congratulated for its commitment to making service a part of the ethic of their school. In particular, we would like to extend our thanks and sincere appreciation to you, Peggy Cain, Jay Darrin and Dave Gangi for your support and encouragement of the program over the last few years.

Couples, singles at proms against them for sexual preference, but the school says it can forbid them from going as a same-sex, non-gay couple. The assistant principal, according to news accounts, gives as the reasons the fact that he's been there 30 years and it has never been allowed and if girls go unattached to a date, they might steal some other girl's date.

Well, please. My mother often encouraged us to go in groups instead of believing we could only go somewhere with a date. But someone here at this office say proms are for dates; people going in groups isn't what proms are all about.

I called Andover High School and talked with Assistant Principal Ellen Parker, who is, in my opinion, very sensible about the subject of people going to proms without dates.

"We had quite a few kids come stag" to Andover High School's prom at the Marriott last Saturday, said Ms. Parker. "A number came with friends and didn't have any problem at all. We had a couple of girls together, and some groups – two guys and three girls."

Ms. Parker said if we want to teach independence and the fact that a person can stand on his or her own, then "We certainly can't say you can't come without a date."

That's why AHS sells its tickets as single tickets.

TOWNTALK

Donald Mathias Jr. had a showing of illustrations in the middle gallery at Montserrat College of Art in Beverly. Mr. Mathias, a 1989 graduate of Andover High School, is a junior at Montserrat College of Art, majoring in illustration. Thirteen pieces of his current work in oil, ink, scratchboard and watercolor were presented from May 11-17.

Mr. Mathias has been actively pursuing a career in the arts from his work at the Collins Center during his high school days to his current academic achievements at Montserrat College of Art and stage production work at the North Shore Music Theatre. Last month during the annual open house exhibition, Mr. Mathias had an additional seven prints and illustrations displayed.

Do you know the child in this photo? It is one of many dropped off at the Townsman recently by a person who found a roll of film on Essex Street and had the photos developed. The rest of the roll is of this little boy and two little girls, who appear to be his siblings, and their father. The photos were taken in Halloween costumes and near a Christmas tree. Matt Chernicki, age 7, of 259 Andover St., the son of Walter and Janice Chernicki, was rewarded recently for being honest.

Matt found a tennis court net in the woods near Pomps Pond when he and his mother were hiking there. His father said Matt knew that the net belonged to the town courts so they called the Department of Community Services.

Peg Campbell of the DCS arranged to give Matt a citation, a piece of paper that said, "Thanks for being honest and helpful. The world needs more people like you." Walter Chernicki said Ms. Campbell told his son that he saved the town money.

Eric went on to the third round of Round-of-16 and lost to the number-two seed and Dan lost in the third round to the number-one seed.

Reaching out to Russia

By Mary Katis

Ben Bergstein from Burlington, Vt., organized a group of 10, consisting of doctors, teachers, businessmen and two students, to travel with medicine to help the townspeople of Yaroslavi, Russia, and their poorly equipped children's hospital. He is vice president of a sister city program that brings music and early American folk dancing to many countries around the world.

Seeing the need for medicine in Yaroslavi, he promised to help send medicine from New England. He invited his nephew, Mathew Smith, a sophomore at North Andover High School, to come with them.

Mathew Smith

The group collected donations and money to purchase non-prescription medicine such as Tylenol, aspirin, actifed, and bandages. Mathew wrote a letter to local papers and described the need for medicine in Yaroslavi, and asked the Merrimack Valley to contribute. They made the trip at the end of March.

His parents, David and Miriam Smith, 29 Buckingham, North Andover, their relatives and friends all helped make the trip possible "I couldn't believe all the people who wrote to me and came to my house with vitamins and bandages or lots of over-the-counter drugs to ship to Russia," said Mathew. "Even a Girl Scout Troop, #291 in Methuen, made a contribution. Conlon Drug in Lawrence, Brooks Drug in North Andover, New England Document and Conversation Center and the DeMoulas Foundation supported us with donations."

North Andover residents donated 250 pounds of medicines to be mailed with the other donated medicines from Vermont. The groups traveled as guests of the town of Ursula. They stayed in hotels and had to show a passport when they entered or exited the lobby.

Yaroslavi is 1,000-year-old city, located northeast of Moscow, with approximately 600,000 residents. The city, on the Volga River, had been a vacation area for the czars and Russian nobles. Today it is a very industrial city with many smoke stacks, polluted water and air. The water is undrinkable with bacteria. The buildings are two or three stories high with cobblestone squares for walking space and many monuments of Lenin.

"The subways are very clean, no graffiti anywhere, with chandeliers and marble floors," said Mathew.

Mathew noticed many differences in the general appearance and lifestyle of the Russian people. They want American styles but are wearing drab and out-of-date clothes. Most of their teeth are crooked or have gold caps. Dental care is very expensive and painful. To use Novocain for fillings or extractions would cost a six-month salary.

"The Russians like candy but can't have any without causing dental problems,"said Mathew.

"The ruble is worthless. Most people earn enough to only survive," said Mathew. "An average income for a top government official could be $20 a month, which only buys enough to get by. A cab driver was so desperate for money he waited two hours and drove a long journey for $2 or 100 rubles."

The cab drivers drive on roads with huge pot holes every 10 feet. In Russia the streets are in disrepair and very few people drive cars because they are too expensive. People are very interested in America and how we live The Russian people in Yaroslavi are just beginning to have television available, and products such as an automatic camera are unknown to them. The people with whom Mathew spoke didn't know about microwave ovens, but a local factory is building them for export.

Most of the homes Mathew visited were small with three or four rooms.

"The homes I was in had rugs on the walls and were fancy inside. People smoke in their homes and everywhere in Russia," said Mathew.

There is a great emphasis on learning English and on everything American. He met a 17-year-old student who had studied English for 10 years and another student, 20 years old, who was attending the University of Yaroslavi, a five-year school, and majoring in conversational English. Mathew visited a small peasant community school in Yaroslavi and was surprised when a pack of American gum was auctioned for the highest amount.

"I became aware of all the things I took for granted," Mathew said.

The Smith family has a Russian heritage. Mathew's grandparents fled from the country during the Russian Revolution in 1923. His grandmother remembers being carried out of a burning house. An older sibling carried her to safety. Years later she wanted to look for the rest of the family but the Russian government wouldn't allow it. There were eight children and three had to stay behind because they had families of their own and couldn't arrange for their passage.

Traveling in Russia extended to St. Petersburg and Moscow. Mathew was able to visit the Hermitage museum in St. Petersburg. Mathew was impressed with its size – "300 rooms and very very ornate."

J. Emmett Goggin, principal of North Andover High School, and Mathew's parents encouraged him to take another trip. The North East Soccer Club Invitational asked Mathew to participate at the Invitational games in Holland, Belgium, England and France. Mathew can play any position, but usually is given a right defense place on the North Andover Varsity Team. So at the end of April he took a six-day trip back, to play soccer.

AHS girls' tennis team clinches MVC championship

By Rick Harrison

The Virginia Slims circuit may be the only place the Andover High girls' tennis team would find any competition this year.

The Lady Warriors completed the inevitable earlier this week, clinching their eighth consecutive Merrimack Valley Conference championship with two more 5-0 shutout victories over Tewksbury and Billerica.

Like lambs to the slaughter the MVC opponents were led to the court this spring, not one of whom fared any better than the Chistians against the lions.

Coach Tony Russo's devastating powerhouse entered its final three matches with a 13-0 overall record, all 13 wins 5-0 sweeps, and the girls stood 103-1 in their last 104 league matches and 109-6 in the last 115 overall. The Lady W's had also won 130 of 132 sets prior to yesterday's match with co-runnerup Chelmsford High (12-2).

The regular season ends tomorrow at Lowell (also 12-2), and the Eastern Mass. Division 1 Tournament starts early next week with Andover expected to be seeded No. 1 or No. 2.

The AHS boys, meanwhile, improved to 12-1 overall with a 5-0 whitewash of Billerica.

Monday's match with Lawrence was postponed by rain and wet courts, and was scheduled to be made up today.

The 10th shutout for Coach Mike Wartman's squad served as final preparations for yesterday's first-place title showdown with unbeaten Chelmsford (14-0).

The Lions, who whipped Andover soundly (4-1) back on April 29, are threatening to break the Golden Warriors' seven-year stranglehold on first place.

The boys, who also journey to Lowell's Shedd Park for the pre-tournament finale tomorrow afternoon, are 119-8 in their last 127 league matches and 140-15 in the last 155 overall.

Andover girls

Sophomore No. 1 Alison Georgian took a breather, Rachel Roberts made her 1992 singles' debut at No. 2, and the beat went on as the Lady Warriors dropped just six games in the six sets against visiting Tewksbury.

Senior Co-Capt. Kim Heller won for the second time at No. 1 with a 6-1, 6-1 romp over Kerry O'Brien, Rachel Roberts blitzed Kristin Ford 6-0, 6-0 and freshman Jen Griffin improved to 2-0 at No. 3 singles with a 6-3, 6-1 cruise past Jen Brooks.

In doubles, Kara Gack and Erin Cowhig teamed for the first time and ripped the Redgals' Amy Smith and Keri Dwyer 6-3, 6-1 at No. 1.

Sajini Shetty and Melissa Minot improved to 2-0 as a No. 2 doubles tandem with a 6-0, 6-0 dismantling of Candice Hodges and Michelle Platz.

In the 5-0 waltz past Billerica, Alison Georgian improved to 10-0 league and 12-1 overall with a 6-0, 6-0 annihiliation of Sindi Boudreau.

Amy Fenton, 3-0 at No. 3 singles, taught the Indians' Julie Gibson a 6-1, 6-2 lesson.

In doubles, Beth Everett and Hilary Recesso are now 2-0 following a 6-2, 6-1 triumph over Laurie Savage and Casey Mahoney.

Junior Kara Gack and Laura Cavicchi duplicated with a 6-1, 6-2 decision over Pat Morrison and Karen Rivard at No. 2.

Andover boys

Senior Co-Capt. Paul Bernardin, perhaps thinking ahead to the Eastern Mass. Individual Championship quarterfinals scheduled the following morning, struggled before edging Billerica No. 1 Ty Munson 6-1, 3-6, 7-6 to improve to 10-1 in league play and 13-1 overall.

Bernardin had destroyed Munson 6-1, 6-1 in their first meeting three weeks earlier.

Junior Eric Block went to 13-1 in the MVC following a 6-4, 6-1 conquest of Kevin Taylor, and sophomore Danb Queen jumped his record to 10-1 after a symmetrical 6-2, 6-2 trouncing of Jason Reid.

Two new doubles teams were equally successul, both surrendering just three games in two-set sweeps.

Senior Co-Capt. Doug Cullen and junior John Faldetta whipped Billerica's Brian Gibson and Chris Spring 6-2, 6-1, while senior Thera Palanisamy and junior Andy Cohen tripped Keith Bridge and Jack Diaz 6-1, 6-2.

Bernardin eliminated in quarterfinals

By Rick Harrison

The last surviving Andover High tennis player bit the dust in the Eastern Mass. Individual Championships last weekend, with boys' No. 1 Paul Bernardin eliminated in the North Sectional quarterfinals by Rob Newton of St. John's Prep.

It was an unusual three set match that began with Newton winning the opening set 7-6, the tiebreaker decided 7-5.

Ordinarily the player who suffers a tough loss is mentally down for the next set, but Bernardin and Newton threw that theory out the window when the Andover senior co-captain blitzed his SJP opponent 6-0 in the second set.

Newton, having been trounced, would figure to have a tough time getting it back in gear for the third set.

Not so.

The deciding set was closely-contested in the early stages, but then Newton pulled away for a 6-3 triumph to close out the bizarre marathon that featured unusual momentum swings.

Bernardin won three earlier matches to reach the quarters, and he has been beaten just once in regular season Merrimack Valley Conference competition by Chelmsford's Eric Kaplan.

Kaplan and Bernardin, 14-2 overall record this spring, were scheduled to face one another for the second time yesterday in the Andover-Chelmsford MVC title showdown.

American Legion baseball team holds tryouts tonight

The Andover American Legion Post 8 baseball team will hold tryouts tonight (Thursday, May 21) at 6 p.m. at the Andover High varsity field.

A second tryout is scheduled for this Saturday, May 23, with the exact time to be announced at tonight's opening session.

Any young man between the ages of 16 and 19 years who lives in Andover, regardless of the school he attends, is eligible to play.

Candidates must not reach their 19th birthday prior to August 1, 1992.

Post 8 has 12 players from last season eligible to return this year.

Andover completed the 1991 campaign with a 15-6 overall record, finishing second to Haverhill in the Zone 8-8A standings and then bowing to Wakefield 6-3 in the opening round of playoffs.

Joe Iarrobino will manage and Nick Lembo will coach once again this summer.

Anyone with further questions about the Legion team, or the try outs, is asked to call 474-0523.

Boys' track team remains unbeaten; Clark, Ippolito stand out among girls

By Rick Harrison

The boys continued their season-long roll by winning the Merrimack Valley Conference Championship Meet, while record-setting Tri-Captain Jill Ippolito and undefeated hurdler Holly Clark were individual standouts for the girls, highlighting another outstanding week of track and field performances at Andover High.

Both AHS teams surpassed 100 points in dual meet romps over visiting Lowell, the boys remaining undefeated with a 101-44 victory and the girls registering their most lopsided triumph of the spring by a 105-31 count.

It was against Lowell that Jill Ippolito unleashed a spectacular 17'9-1/2" leap to win the long jump, eclipsing the existing Andover High girls' record of 17'3" established by Norma DeFusco back in 1977 when Jill was just three years old.

Incredibly the record leap surpassed Yale University-bound Ippolito's best previous effort in competition by more than a foot. She had never gone more than 17 feet before, topping out at 16'8."

Her performance came on the heels of school record-setting and record-tying efforts by Jamie Damon (100 meters) and Jason McCue (110-meter high hurdles) in the Boosters Invitational the previous week.

The boys clinched at least a tie for the 1992

AHS baseball comes up smelling like a rose

By Rick Harrison

Only the very good teams can stumble, fall and still come up smelling like a rose.

Andover High has a very good baseball team, and so it was merely poetic justice that after the Golden Warriors were rocked 9-5 by Haverhill they still managed to clinch another Merrimack Valley Conference Large School Division championship just 24 hours later.

Coach Dave Bettencourt's defending State Division 1 champions won the league title, despite the loss to Haverhill, because they bounced back the following night to beat Lawrence High 5-1 while second place Billerica suffered disastrous back-to-back defeats to Central Catholic (6-3) and Tewksbury (5-4).

The Warriors also won because they have lefthander Jim Hanning who has been untouchable all season. Hanning amazingly came back on a mere two days rest to fire a two-hit, 11-strikeout masterpiece against Lawrence High under the lights at Mark Devlin Field.

Most pitchers could never have bounced back that effectively with so little rest, but Hanning does not throw many pitches and appears to have developed a mental and physical toughness belied by his slender 6'2", 160-pound frame.

Andover also blasted Central Catholic 18-4 on Monday as sophomore Toby Guzowski led the way with a three-run homer and five RBI altogether.

The results left Andover at 15-2 overall, 12-2 league, and made yesterday's rematch with Billerica (10-4, 13-4) in the MVC finale nothing more than a struggle for a higher seed in the tourney.

The Golden Warriors make their final Eastern Mass. Division 1 Tournament preparations this weekend, hoping to defend their Lawrence Invitational Tournament championship.

Andover will play North Andover in the semifinal round, and depending on that result square off against either Methuen or host Lawrence in the championship or consolation game the following day.

Hanning's fabulous statistics through the Lawrence game were topped by a 9-0 record and 0.66 ERA. In 53 innings he has yielded just 20 hits and five earned runs, striking out 91 (1.7 per inning) and walking 24.

Justin Hesenius, meanwhile, is 6-2 with a 2.33 ERA. In 50.2 innings he has permitted 45 hits and 17 earned runs while striking out 71 (1.4 per inning) and walking 11.

Haverhill, 9-5

The Hillies (8-8), coached by Andover resident Chip Dunn, have hit the ball well most of the season and helped the Goldern Warriors earlier this spring by knocking off Billerica (6-4).

Matt Wolcott, a sophomore leftfielder for the Warriors, contributed a hit in the 5-1 win over Lawrence.

The first time the teams met on April 22 Andover rolled, 9-1, with junior righthander Justin Hesenius tossing six innings of overpowering three-hit, 11-strikeout ball.

Hesenius baffled Haverhill for the first four innings in this one, too, entering the fifth with a 4-1 lead. He had permitted just four hits and struck out four.

But, for the first time this season, Andover's outstanding underclassman unraveled.

Haverhill tied it with three runs in the fifth, lacing four hits including a long two-run triple down the right field line by Matt Favalora who then scored on Steve Eramo's infield out.

The Hillies spanked five more basehits and scored five runs in the sixth before sophomore Todd Murray was summoned in relief. Key strokes were consecutive two run singles by Eramo, after Favalora was intentionally walked, and Carlos Rosario.

Rosario's RBI single in the top of the first gave Haverhill a 1-0 lead, but Andover tied it in the third when Jim Landry walked, stole second, took third on sophomore Matt Wolcott's infield out and scored on Hesenius's sacrifice fly.

In the Warriors' fourth Chris Lembo and Matt Daniels slapped leadoff singles. Rich Radulski singled to right for the go-ahead run, Daniels crossed on sophomore Toby Guzowski's infield out, and Radulski crossed when Landry grounded to third and the fielder elected to get the batter instead of tagging Radulski.

That set the stage for Haverhill's late eight-run explosion.

Andover's final run came in the seventh when Landry beat out an infield hit, moved to third on an infield out and wild pitch, and scored on Bob Sheehan's groundout to shortstop.

Radulski and Sheehan led Andover's nine-hit attack with two safeties apiece.

Todd Murray pitched 1.1 innings in relief, surrendering a pair of singles (one infield) and no runs.

This was only the second loss in 38 games and the first time during that stretch that the Warriors were soundly thrashed.

Andover, 5-1
(Title Clincher)

A three-run fourth inning against Lawrence, coupled with the superb work of Jim Hanning, combined to ease the pain of the Haverhill loss.

The batting order received a major shakeup for the first time this season, Bobby Sheehan elevated to leadoff, Jim Landry hitting second and the middle of the order consisting of Josh Nelkin, catcher Ben Russell and designated hitter Toby Guzowski. Matt Wolcott, Justin Hesenius and Chris Lembo were dropped to the bottom third.

Mike Daley led the 11-hit assault with three doubles, two RBI and a run scored, while Sheehan rapped three hits, Lembo belted his first home run and the team's fourth of the season, and Hesenius collected his team-leading 16th and 17th RBI.

Contributing one hit apiece for the locals were Landry, Russell and Wolcott.

Andover, 18-4

The Golden Warriors eliminated Central Catholic (9-9) from tournament consideration by pounding out 15 hits against three Red Raider pitchers, scoring six runs in the bottom of the first and adding seven in the sixth for the bulk of the damage.

Justin Hesenius came back with a solid five-inning effort, yielding just four hits and a pair of unearned runs while walking three and whiffing eight.

Sophomore Todd Murray and junior Scott Eggert threw one inning of relief eacvh, Eggert blowing CCHS away 1-2-3 with a pair of strikeouts.

Nine batters paraded to the plate in the sixx-run first.

Josh Nelkin and Mike Daley singled, Jim Landry walked to load the bases, Matt Wolcott bounced a two-run single into left field, Chris Lembo grounded an RBI double down the line, and Toby Guzowski unloaded a three-run line-drive bullet home run over the center fielder's head.

In the Andover third Landry doubled to left and eventually crossed on a wild pitch. Wolcott reached on a catcher's interference call and later crossed on Guzowski's harsh grounder to second base.

In the fourth stanza Nelkin rapped his second single, Hesenius doubled him home and then continued around the bases when the ball was misplayed in the outfield.

Guzowski was safe on an error and scored on another miscue for the Warriors' 11th run in the fifth.

The seven-run sixth was highlighted by Scott Henry's two-run single and an RBI basehit by Landry.

Nelkin, Landry, Guzowski and Mike Daley had two hits apiece for Andover, while Landry, Wolcott and Guzowski scored three runs each.

Scott Eggert throws no-hitter for junior varsity team

By Rick Harrison

With junior lefthander Scott Eggert's no-hit masterpiece leading the way, the Andover High junior varsity baseball team recently improved its record to 8-8 with a 7-0 whitewash of Lawrence.

Eggert, who has spent most of the season with the varsity, was in complete control throughout as he fanned the first nine batters he faced and finished the game with 16 strikeouts.

The southpaw standout walked three but ended up facing just 22 batters in seven innings, one over the minumum, after he and sophomore catcher Paul Allard both picked one runner off base.

There was not a ball hit out of the infield, and the only thing close to a difficult defensive play was made by shortstop Jeff Lembo who went behind second base to scoop up a grounder and throw out the runner.

Coach Dan Grams's club scored five runs in the top of the first when Allard singled, stole second, Andy Brown and red-hot Bob Daley belted back-to-back RBI doubles, Lembo singled and Damon Bellorado launched a three-run homer (his first).

Jeff Lembo, whose brother Chris hit a home run in the varsity game on an adjacent field, made it two for the family that night by clouting his own solo shot for the JVs in the fifth stanza.

The final run came in the seventh when Allard walked, pinchrunner Mike Morris took second on a wild pitch, Tom Pecoraro reached on an error and Daley spiked an RBI single.

Allard finished the game 3-for-3 and was on base four times, Daley and Lembo added two safeties each, Doug Batchelder singled and Andy Brown doubled.

Defensive standoouts were Paul Allard at catcher and Bob Daley at first base.

Tewksbury, 12-2

Very little went right for Andover after Bob Daley slugged a first-inning home run.

Tewksbury, 11-3, dominated the remainder of the game and cuffed around AHS hurlers Tim Caverly, Andy Brown and Jeff Lembo.

Daley contributed three hits, including the homer, while Damon Bellorado added two, Lembo doubled and Matt Chapin spanked a single.

Andover, 10-7

Sophomore righthander Todd Murray, elevated to the varsity after this contest, worked four strong innings to hike his JV record to 3-0.

Murray scattered three hits, struck out four and yielded just one run.

Andover spotted the Lions a 1-0 lead in the top of the first and then roared back for a 10-1 lead after four innings, scoring two runs in the bottom of the first, four in the second and four more in the fourth.

Andover High's softball team continues (up and) down road of inconsistency

By Rick Harrison

Two recent games provided a perfect view of the Andover High softball team's season in microcosm.

The Lady Warriors needed just over one hour to edge Tewksbury 1-0 as the pitching and defense came together beautifully.

But 48 hours later those two aspects of the game were nowhere to be found, as Billerica pounded out 13 hits and Andover made seven errors en route to a 10-1 loss.

"That's the way it's been," stated Coach Pellerin. "Up one game and down the next. Our inconsistency has hurt. When the girls come to the game focused and ready to play we can compete with any one."

Everything was out of focus again earlier this week when Lawrence came to town, 48 hours after the prom, and pinned a 9-1 defeat on the locals.

Andover, which cannot qualify for the tournament but could still end up with its best record in 14 years, entered this final week of Merrimack Valley Conference play with a 6-11overall record.

The Lady Warriors hosted Chelmsford (5-12) yesterday, and wrap up the 1992 campaign with the league finale tomorrow at Lowell (1-16) and a non-league rematch next Tuesday at North Andover (both 3:30 p.m.).

Lindsey Sweeney led the team in batting after 16 games with 20-for-55, a .364 average.

Other top hitters are senior Tri-Captain Meghan Mueller at .354 on 17-for-48, Kirstin Nowell at .272 on 3-for-11, Melissa McNamara at .293 on 12-for-41 and Marcia Gemmell .260 on 13-for-50.

Lindsey Sweeney had pitched 104.2 innings, yielding 83 hits and 37 earned runs while striking out 70 and walking 30. Her ERA was 2.47 after 16 games.

Andover, 1-0

In what has to rank as one of the quickest seven-inning games in AHS softball history, Lindsey Sweeney and Tewksbury's Aimee French threw matching three-hitters.

Neither pitcher walked a batter, Sweeney whiffed four, and the shutout was her third of the season (North Andover, Lowell). All three shutouts have come at the home West Middle School field.

Sweeney also threw seven shutout innings against Methuen but eventually settled for a 2-1 victory in eight.

"We actually hit the ball a ton against Tewksbury," said Coach Pellerin. "French throws the ball super slow, but their shortstop (Jen Whittlesey) and third baseman (Laura Klerowski) are excellent defensively. We kept hitting the ball hard on the ground, and those two kept making all the plays."

The same basic scenario occurred the first time the two teams met, when Tewksbury walked away with a 2-1 victory.

The only run came in the bottom of the first when leadoff batter Sweeney singled, moved all the way to third on Meghan Mueller's sacrifice bunt, and scored on Marcia Gemmell's fielder's choice grounder.

The only other AHS safeties were a second-inning single by Kim Sullivan and fifth-inning single by Sharon Su.

The Lady Warriors made just one error while handling 17 chances in the field.

Catcher Julie DiLiegro caught three foul popups, and junior shortstop Amy Cassidy squashed the only Tewksbury threat when she ranged to her left and snagged a grounder up the middle with two down and runners at first and second. Cassidy snapped up the ball, juggled it momentarily, and then stepped on second base for the forceout to end the inning.

Billerica, 10-1

Coach Ken Pellerin's master plan was thwarted by seven errors and a Billerica team that had its hitting shoes on.

"I started Sarah (Dziadul) on the mound because she throws much slower than Lindsey (Sweeney)," explained the coach. "Billerica lost to Tewksbury twice and had trouble hitting (Aimee French) who also throws very slow."

The strategy was sound, but Pellerin hadn't counted on seven errors to open the floodgates.

"We definitely helped them along (although ony three runs were unearned)," noted the coach. "I took a chance (with the pitcher), but the team didn't respond the way I thought it would."

With all those free gifts and second chances the Indians were able to rap nine hits off Dziadul, scoring all 10 of their runs in the first three stanzas.

Andover managed 11 hits off Billerica ace Beth Love (13-3), but she was tough when necessary as the Lady Warriors left the bases loaded in each of the first three innings.

In the first a groundout to third base left three runners stranded, in the second Love loaded the bases with two down and then fanned the next batter.

The lone AHS run came in the top of the third at Lampson Field in Billerica, as Marcia Gemmell singled, moved up on a fielder's choice and crossed on junior Katie Walsh's RBI single.

But again there was a Lady Warrior perched at each base when a fielder's choice ended the inning.

Lindsey Sweeney scattered four hits and held Billerica scoreless over the final three innings.

Beth Love, who blanked Andover 3-0 on a pair of scratch hits (bunt single, infield dribbler) the first time around, was no mystery in this one although she only walked one and whiffed six.

Meghan Mueller (double, single), Sweeney (two singles) and Sharon Su (two singles) had a pair of safeties apiece, while other singles were lashed by Gemmell, Walsh, Kirstin Nowell and Tri-Captains Julie DiLiegro and Erin Kearn.

"Offensively everything we tried worked," said Coach Pellerin. "We just broke down in the other areas."

Kayleen McNulty, Melissa Rochefort and Caroline Hurray had two hits and two RBI apiece for MVC Large School Division co-leader Billerica.

Lawrence, 9-1

There was little of redeeming quality here for Andover, which had given the Small School leaders a mighty tussle the first time around before bowing 2-1.

Carrie Higgenbottom tossed a route-going four-hitter for the Lancers (13-4), blanking the Lady Warriors until the bottom of the seventh when Gina Paone walked, took second on a wild pitch, third on Erin Kearn's infield out, and scored on Sharon Su's single.

Lawrence, meanwhile, roughed up Lindsey Sweeney for nine runs (eight earned) on eight hits, scoring in every inning but the first and fourth. Sweeney walked two and fanned two.

Su finished the game with 2-for-3, while Melissa McNamara and Erin Kearn had the other hits.

Higgenbottom was able to shut down Andover's big hitters as Sweeney, Meghan Mueller, Marcia Gemmell and Kirsten Nowell were all collared.

Defensively Mueller played a strong game at first base.

Volleyball team looks to beat Milford

By Rick Harrison

It all came down to this afternoon's match with Milford High.

The Andover High boys' volleyball team, which backed itself into a corner with consecutive 2-1 losses to Chelmsford and Billerica last week, must upset Eastern Mass. League North Division power Milford (12-2 record) today to qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tournament for the third straight year.

Coach George Sullivan's crew, hosting the regular season finale at the Dunn Gymnasium (4 p.m.), lost to Milford 2-0 the first time around two weeks ago and needed a yeoman effort this afternoon.

Andover, the two-time defending EML North titlist, is 8-6 this spring and 48-21 overall in its brief four-year existence.

Four of the six losses have been by tight 2-1 scores, with the only two shutouts against the Warriors registered by North Division 1-2 powers Milford and Billerica.

In both the Chelmsford and Billerica matches Andover won the first game before dropping the last two.

Chelmsford, blanked 2-0 by the Golden Warriors earlier this season, lost the first game 11-15 before rallying for a 16-14 overtime victory and a 15-12 decision in the final game.

Senior Kevin Ring (Westfield State College next year) contributed a team-high 12 kills, while senior Chris Shea (Brandeis University) added six and senior Co-Captain Kevin Murphy was an all-around standout.

Scott Eggert throws no-hitter

Chelmsford made it interesting with a spirited comeback, notching three runs in the fifth, three in the sixth and loading the bases in the seventh before reliever Tim Caverly whiffed the final batter to end the threat.

Bob Daley again led the assault with three hits, including a triple, and four RBI.

Murray helped himself with a two-run single, Doug Batchelder singled twice and scored two runs, Pauji Allard laced two hits, Andy Brown doubled and Jeff Lembo stroked a single.

Joe Shea was a defensive standout at third base.

Dracut, 5-3

Sophomore Jeff Lembo pitched well in a losing cause, going the distance and surrendering just five basehits.

Unfortunately two of the safeties were bases-loaded doubles in the fifth and sixth innings, when the Middies produced all their runs.

Paul Allard and Joe Shea lashed two singles apiece for Andover, Doug Batchelder had an RBI single, and other hits were drilled by Bob Daley and Steve Marchlik.

Lowell, 3-0

Righthander Tim Caverly was the hard-luck losing pitcher, yielding only two hits and striking out four in five innings.

He also walked seven, however, and two of those free passes eventually came around to score.

Todd Murray tossed one inning in relief and fanned two, giving him 38 strikeouts in 19 innings (2.0 average).

Andover managed just four singles in the contest, one each by Toby Guzowski, Andy Brown, Steve Marchlik and Sam McLellan.

Jeff Lembo was a defensive standout at shortstop.

Freshman softball posts three wins

The high-scoring Andover High girls' freshman softball team chalked up three more victories last week, improving to 8-2 overall with wins over Tewksbury (17-16), Dracut (18-6) and Lawrence (8-1).

In the win over Tewksbury, Milli Dominquez and Amy Baker laced three hits apiece and Kim Daher got the pitching victory in relief.

Amy Baker drilled four hits and Kim Daher was the winning pitcher against Dracut.

The triumph over Lawrence was led by Baker, Dominquez and Susanne Eymer, each of whom rapped two hits, while Daher chalked up her seventh victory on the mound.

The Andover freshman girls' club was scheduled to wrap up the 1992 season this week with home games against North Andover and Lawrence.

Students from Andover High School will be among the 25,000 people participating in the seventh annual From All Walks of Life pledge walk for AIDS prevention and care Sunday, May 31. From All Walks of Life, a 6.2-mile walk, is the largest AIDS fund-raiser in New England, generating $2 million to support the efforts of the AIDS Action Committee and 28 other AIDS-service providers.

Students will gather pledges of financial support between now and May 31.

Amy Parziale, a sophomore at Andover High, is organizing the student group. Students can obtain a pledge sheet from Amy (homeroom 226) or math teacher Jay Darrin. For more information, call the AIDS Action Committee Walkline at (617) 424-WALK.

Boys' track remains unbeaten; Clark, Ippolito stand out among girls

MVC Large School Division title, improving to 4-0-0 in the division and 7-0-0 overall entering yesterday's Haverhill meet. Central Catholic and Lowell were tied for second place at 3-1-0.

The Lady Warriors were also in position to clinch their MVC Large School Division title with a win over Haverhill. The Andover girls are 3-0-0 in the division and 3-3-0 overall.

In the MVC Championship Meet, the Andover boys ran away with the title by piling up 111.5 points to easily outdistance runner-up Central Catholic at 88.5 points.

This was the third big meet triumph for the boys, who also captured the Haverhill Invitational and Andover Boosters Invitational. Their only non-victory this spring came in the State Class B Relays where they placed second to Reading.

Undefeated Steve Shepard continued his tremendous individual run last week, winning four more times in the two meets to improve to 26-0 in the long jump, triple jump and 300-meter intermediate hurdles.

The AHS girls were a close third in the MVC Meet, their 92 points eight behind winner Tewksbury (100) and three behind second place Methuen (95).

The Lady Warriors have also won the State Class B Relays and Andover Boosters Invitational, while finishing second to Tewksbury at the Wilmington Invitational.

This Saturday Andover will compete in the annual Northern Area Meet at Masconomet Regional in Topsfield (10 a.m.), and the dual meet campaign concludes next Wednesday with a crossover against Small School team Wilmington at Lovely Field (3:30 p.m.).

The Andover boys will be among the favorites at the State Class B Meet in Reading on Saturday, May 30 (9 a.m.).

Qualifiers there advance to the All-State Meet on June 6 at Bridgewater State College, and the New England Championships will be run in East Hartford, Ct. on June 13.

Injury report

A couple of nagging injuries are knawing at two of the top Andover trackmen.

Steve Shepard has some back muscle problems that convinced Coach Dick Collins to pull him out of the 300-meter hurdles event against Lowell.

"It's not too serious but I'm getting a little nervous with all the competition recently and the State Meet just a couple weeks away," admitted Collins.

Sprint star Jamie Damon, meanwhile, developed some hamstring problems while running the anchor leg of the victorious 4x100 meter relay against Lowell.

He did not compete in the MVC Championship Meet.

Andover girls, 105-31

The Lady Warriors destroyed Lowell (2-4-0) with their depth, winning 14 of 16 events and sweeping the triple jump, long jump, javelin, 100 meter dash, 300 hurdles and 2-mile.

Jill Ippolito had her impressive double in the long jump and 100 meters (12.8).

Senior Tri-Captain Layne Whitley, junior Kerry Hagerty and sophomore Stacey Lavoie each chalked up eight points with a first and second place finish, while senior Kasie Kearins contributed a first and third place.

Whitley won the 400 meters (62.1) and was second in the long jump with a personal-best 17'1" leap (first time over 17 feet). Hagerty won the javelin toss (91'7") and was second in the discus (87'10"). Lavoie captured the 100-meter hurdles (16.0) and was runner-up in the triple jump (31'4"), and KK won the triple jump for the first time (31'7") and finished third in the 100 hurdles (16.9).

Other field event winners were high jumper Carolyn Vallee (4'8") and junior shot putter Nicole Kelley (personal-best 30'5"), while joining Ippolito and Whitley in the sprints was freshman Amy Levesque in the 200 meters (27.4).

Impressive victories in the distance events came from Jennifer Batts in the 800 meters (2:31.5), Leigh Clarke in the mile (5:49.2) and sophomore Amanda Grasso in the 2-mile (12:48.0).

The 4x100 meter relay team of Levesque, Alex Wendt, Jamie Barron and Ippolito also broke the tape in 52.2.

Rebecca Goldenberg and Grace Perry also placed in two events each. Goldenberg was second in the 300 hurdles (51.5) and third in the long jump (16'0"), while Perry took second in the javelin (82'6") and third in the 300 hurdles (52.9).

Additional second places were taken by Alex Wendt in the 100 meters (13.1), sophomore Sarah Witman in the 400 meters (62.5) and Diane Ellsworth in the deuce (13:40.0).

Third place finishers included a pair of outstanding gymnasts, junior triple jumper Anne Milmoe (30'6") and freshman discus thrower Marcie Lutsch (75'0").

Other thirds were taken by junior high jumper Lisa Perdigao (4'6"), Lakisha Williams in the javelin (77'10"), freshman Melissa Gould in the 100 meters (13.6), Jamie Barron in the 200 meters (28.0) and Tricia McNeice in the 800 meters (3:34.0).

Andover boys, 101-44

In this showdown that wasn't a showdown, Steve Shepard earned a double and the Warriors placed first in 14 of 17 events to hand previously-undefeated Lowell its first defeat.

The sweeps came in the triple jump, 100 and discus.

Shepard, who bypassed a potential showdown with Lowell's Dave Harrold in the 300 meter hurdles because of his nagging stiff back, won the long jump (21'7") and triple jump (42'11") easily.

The Warriors placed first in six of the seven field events, with Shepard joined in the winner's circle by junior shot putter J.P. Ciruso (44'9"), pole vaulter Dan Wrigley (11'0"), Barret t Elliot in the javelin (162'6") and Bob Dalton in the discus (131'0").

Jason McCue remained undefeated in the 110-meter hurdles (14.6), and junior Jon Cirella won the 300-meter hurdles in 43.2 (Harrold fell down).

AHS sprint winners were Tri-Captain Jamie Damon in the 100 meters (11.2) and rapidly-improving Peter Murphy in the 200 meters (24.1).

The distance events were swept by Andover, junior Colin Arsenault in the 800 meters (2:03.1), junior Brian Twomey in the mile (4:46.0) and senior Tri-Captain Jeremy Roux in the deuce (10:25.0).

Andover also captured the 4x100 meter sprint relay in 45.0 with Peter Murphy, Matt Harris, Rob Weisman and Jamie Damon. The win was cistly, however, as Damon injured his hamstring.

Golden Warriors' second place finishers were shot putter Sean O'Leary (42'11"), triple jumper Chris Pothier (personal-best 41'2"), high jumper Andy Leinson (5'8"), Mark Sobieck in the discus (121'6"), sprinters Matt Harris in the 100 meters (11.4), Tri-Captain Mike Giaimo in the 400 meters (53.8), and Jamie Himber in the 300 hurdles (44.0).

MVC Championship Meet

The champion Andover boys won five events in the first MVC Meet in years that attracted the top talent in the league.

The meet, which was rescheduled so as not to conflict with any other big competitions, was held at Cawley Stadium in Lowell.

The Golden Warriors' most impressive performance came from junior miler Brian Twomey, who clocked a swift George Itz like 4:38.4 to beat his previous personal best by four seconds.

Steve Shepard won the long jump (21'4") and 300-meter hurdles (40.0), Jason McCue romped in the 110-meter hurdles (14.7), and the 4x100 meter relay foursome of McCue, Matt Harris, Rob Weisman and Steve Shepard crossed in 44.4.

Matt Harris was the only second place finisher with an 11.3 in the 100 meters.

Thirds were garnered by J.P. Ciruso in the shot put (44'8"), Bob Dalton in the discus (128'11"), John Hess in the triple jump (41'5") and Dan Wrigley in the pole vault (11'0").

Fourth places went to triple jumper Chris Pothier (40'9"), Jon Cirella in the 300 meter hurdles (42.6), Peter Murphy in the 200 meters (23.5), Colin Arsenault in the 800 meters (2:04.1) and two-miler Max Dawson (10:42.5).

Earning two points apiece for fifth place were Barrett Elliot in the javelin (150'8"), two-miler Jeremy Roux (10:43.9) and the 4x400 meter relay team of Mike Giaimo, Arsenault, Matt Ely and Cirella (3:37.2).

Completing the scorers in sixth were shot putter Sean O'Leary (43'6"), pole vaulter Steve Bernard (11'0"), Rob Weisman in the 200 meters (24.3) and Mike Giaimo in the 400 meters (53.8).

Andover girls

The third place Lady Warriors only had one individual winner, Holly Clark running the 300 meter hurdles in a swift personal best 46.2 (she ran 46.3 at Phillips Academy).

Placing second were Kerry Hagerty in the javelin (91'7"), Stacey Lavoie in the 100 meter hurdles (16.3), the 4x100 meter relay team of Amy Levesque, Alex Wendt, Jamie Barron, Jill Ippolito (50.2) and the 4x400 meter relay team of Clark, Sarah Witman, Layne Whitley, Lavoie (4:12.9).

Ippolito also registered a pair of third place finishes in the long jump (15'9") and 100 meters (personal-best 12.4), both events won by Mary Brady of Tewksbury.

The other AHS third went to Lavoie in the triple jump (32'8"), with Tewksbury's Lauren Andriolo soaring 37 feet for the win.

Grabbing fourths were Jamie Barron in the 100 meters (personal-best 12.9), Amy Levesque in the 200 meters (personal-best 27.0), Sarah Witman in the 400 meters (62.5), Amanda Grasso in the 2-mile (12:49.1) and Rebecca Goldenberg in the 300 hurdles (personal-best 49.9).

Kasie Kearins recorded a pair of fifths in the 100 meter hurdles (17.5) and triple jump (31'8"), while Nicole Kelley had a fifth in the shot put (29'1"), Marcie Lutsch was fifth in the discus (personal-best 81'9") and consistent Jen Batts fifth in the 800 meters (2:31.0).

Completing the scorers in sixth were miler Leigh Clarke (5:51.6) and Alex Wendt in the 200 meters (27.8).

Volleyball ...

The win was the fourth straight for improving Chelmsford, which has recovered from a slow start to close in on the .500 mark at 7-8.

Andover won the first game against Billerica, 15-6, but then stumbled badly in consecutive 15-5 and 15-3 losses.

Chris Shea and senior setter Tim Maracle were the bright spots for Andover in the match.

Todd Renneker, Ron Smith and Karl Infanger played key roles in the triumph for Billerica, which improved to 12-3 overall.

The Andover JVs remained undefeated (14-0) with a pair of 2-0 sweeps against Chelmsford and Billerica.

Blue and Gold baseball team members chosen

By Rick Harrison

After an extensive series of tryouts Andover Blue and Gold Pony League managers Joe Iarrobino and Dan Grams held the annual draft last week and put together their 1992 teams.

Both squads have 16 players.

Returning members of Andover Gold are Tom Tanin, Rick Mendez, Tom Bouturela, Dave Kelmer, P.J. Auffermann, Jeff Hesenius, Dave Salafia, Brad Batchelder and Pat Sharkev.

New Gold players are Mike Mano, Andy Henderson, Steve Vickers, Nick Bilwakesh, John Adams, Dan Gosselin and Keith Grant.

Returning members of the Andover Blue crew are Rob Derba, Todd Harris, Dana McCann, Alex Marshall, Justin Connors, Brian Tisbert, Hugh Quattlebaum, Jason Caverly and Ted Witman.

New this year are Tom Gardner, Tim McGovern, Greg Bennett, Ryan Games, Andy Marshall, Chris Kearn and George Seccarelli.

Both teams will begin practicing soon in preparation for opening games the week of June 20.

Once again Andover will compete in the Suburban Pony League against teams from Methuen, North Andover, Lowell, Wilmington, Lynnfield, Reading, North Reading, Winthrop and Stoneham.

Lowell is the only new team this year, and for the first time Andover Blue and Gold will be in the same (North) division of the league.

The post-season playoff format has been changed this year. Only the top two teams in each division will qualify and best-of-3 series will be played to determine the SPL champion.

Dan Grams (manager) and Leo Gravell (coach) return to lead the Gold, while Joe Iarrobino (manager) and Steve Tisbert (coach) will direct the Blue.

Blue and Gold have consistently won division titles and between them have annexed seven league championships in the last eight years.

Freshmen extend winning streak to eight games

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High freshman baseball team galloped down the homestretch last week with an impressive display of power hitting and clutch pitching, blasting Tewksbury (17-2) and Dracut (14-1) before edging Lawrence (4-3) and Central Catholic (5-4) to extend its win streak through eight games.

In putting the complete package together, Coach Ken Maglio's Young Warriors improved to 11-3 (after a 3-3 start) with a final game this week against Lawrence to determine the Merrimack Valley Conference championship.

Tom Tanin and Alex Marshall, the heart of the freshman batting order, had weeks to remember at the plate.

Tanin, whose slugging percentage is over .700, banged out nine hits and drove in nine runs with a home run, triple, three doubles and four singles in the four games. Marshall wasn't far behind with seven hits, including three triples and a double, and five RBI.

Tanin was hitting .478 through 14 games (22-for-46) with three doubles, three triples, four home runs and 20 RBI. Marshall was 16-for-37 for a .432 average with three doubles, four triples, one home run and 11 RBI.

Mike Maguire leads the team in batting with an even .500 average (11-for-22), while other top averages belonged to Ryan Moynihan (.458 on 11-for-24), Dan Hansberry (.349 on 15-for-43) and Pat Walsh (.292 on 14-for-48).

Hansberry also boasted four doubles and three triples, while Walsh had 19 RBI to trail Tanin by one.

On the mound Pat Walsh is 4-0 with a 1.17 ERA. In 30.2 innings he had allowed 33 hits while walking just eight and striking out 17.

Brown checked in at 3-0 with a 1.52 earned run average. In 27.2 innings he had permitted 21 hits while whiffing 27 and walking 16.

Andover, 17-2

The Young Warriors' second biggest outburst of the season (23 runs versus Methuen) was more than Alex Marshall (1-0) needed on the mound, as he tossed four innings of two-hit, shutout ball against Tewksbury in his pitching debut.

Marshall, who struck out six and walked one, gave way to Tom Gardner who held the Redmen hitless for two frames but walked five. Dan Evans mopped up in the seventh, yielding two hits and one run.

Andover took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first at West Middle School as Dave Charland singled, stole second and rode home on Marshall's single.

Twelve batters came to the plate in a five-run Warriors' second, the key hits a double by Mike Maguire, RBI singles by Pete Daniels, Marshall and Pat Walsh and a run-scoring triple by Tom Tanin.

The score jumped to 10-0 in the fourth when eight batter paraded to the plate and four scored. Charland singled, Ryan Moynihan singled, Marshall clouted an RBI double, and Tanin followed with a gigantic three-run homer over the fence and into the tennis courts in center field.

Tewksbury nicked Tom Gardner for its first run in the fifth, but Andover countered with six in the bottom half as once again 12 batters came to the plate.

Daniels and Moynihan reached on errors, Marshall drilled an RBI double, Tanin slugged a two-run double, and RBI singles were spanked by Pat Walsh and Gardner.

The final run came in the sixth when Marshall singled, stole second and crossed on Tanin's RBI basehit.

Tanin was 4-for-5 and performed a baseball rarity, hitting for the cycle with a single, double, triple and home run.

Marshall was 4-for-4 with four RBI, Danny Hansberry 2-for-2 with a double, and Mike Maguire 2-for-3.

Tanin also had an excellent defensive game at shortstop, handling eight chances flawlessly with four assists and four putouts.

Andover, 14-1

Dracut, beaten 10-2 by Andover a week earlier, took it on the chin again as the red-hot Warriors broke open a tight 1-0 game with six runs in the fourth and seven more in the fifth.

Lefthander Chris Brown was the beneficiary of this explosion, improving to 3-0 on the mound with a complete-game three-hitter. He struck out seven and went the distance despite eight walks.

The locals took a 1-0 lead in the top of the second as Tanin walked, stole second base and was rescued by Mike Maguire two-out double up the right-center field gap.

The winners sent 11 batters to the plate in the six-run fourth, the key strokes a two-run triple by Dave Charland, RBI triple by Alex Marshall, two-run single to center by pitcher Brown, and a run-producing single by Mike Maguire.

Eleven more Warriors marched to the plate in the fifth, and they really unloaded as Charland drilled a two-run homer over the left field fence, Danny Hansberry tripled, Tom Tanin launched an RBI double, Marshall belted his second three-bagger of the game, and run-scoring singles were lashed by Tom Gardner and Tom Boutureia.

Dracut spoiled Brown's shutout bid with its lone run in the bottom of the sixth, after which the game was halted.

Charland finished with a home run and triple, Marshall had two triples, Tanin doubled and singled, and two singles each were contributed by Mike Mano, Tom Boutureia and Mike Maguire.

Pat Walsh was a defensive standout at third base.

Andover, 4-3

After six consecutive lopsided games Andover found itself in a life-and-death struggle against the improved Lawrence freshmen at Mark Devlin Field.

Pat Walsh, with last-out relief help from Alex Marshall, chalked up his fourth pitching victory.

Walsh went the first 6.2 innings and yielded nine hits, walking two and fanning six.

Marshall relieved with the bases loaded, two outs and one run already home in the bottom of the seventh. He walked the first batter to force home a run, making it 4-3, and then went to 3-2 on the next hitter before striking him out to end the exciting game in dramatic fashion.

Andover has moved to a 4-0 lead with one run in the third, two in the fourth and another in the fifth.

Mike Maguire was hit by a pitch to start the third. He promptly stole second and eventually rode home on Dan Hansberry's two-out RBI double.

In the Warriors' fourth Alex Marshall tripled and Tom Tanin slapped a run-scoring single. Tanin stole second, continued to third on a wild throw, and trotted across when Pat Walsh lofted a sacrifice fly.

The eventual winning run crossed in the fifth as the pesky and talented Hansberry drew a two-out walk, moved to second on a balk, stole third and raced home on Dave Charland's clutch single.

At this point Walsh was sailing along with a shutout, but things got interesting when Lawrence pushed across a run in the bottom of the fifth and threw the big scare into Andover in the seventh.

The Young Warriors managed just four hits in the game, one each by the first four batters, and they were forced to play without injured second baseman Ryan Moynihan (shoulder).

Catcher Pete Daniels did an outstanding job defensively behind the plate, winning the battle with Walsh's hard-to-stab knuckleball and throwing out one would-be Lancer basestealer.

Andover, 5-4

The Young Warriors avenged an earlier 5-1 defeat to Coach Dave Fazio's Central squad, dropped the Red Raiders to 11-5 overall with this tense victory at the South Common field in Lawrence.

Alex Marshall (2-0), the last of three Andover pitcher, notched the victory with 2.2 innings of one-hit, shutout relief.

Chris Brown worked the first 2.2 innings and was nicked for three runs on three hits in the third, while Tom Gardner tossed 1.2 frames of one-hit middle relief.

The trio combined for four walks and four strikeouts.

Andover took a 1-0 lead in the second when Tom Tanin singled, stole second and scored on Mike Maguire's RBI single to left field.

It went to 2-0 in the top of the third as Danny Hansberry was hit by a pitch, Dave Charland sacrificed and Tanin ripped an RBI double.

Central retaliated with three runs in the bottom of the third, but the Young Warriors tied it 3-3 with another single run in the fourth, Gardner sliced an opposite-field single to left, stole second, took third on Maguire's single and crossed on Chris Brown's infield out.

Central regained the lead with a run in the fifth, after Andover had loaded the bases but failed to score on a single by Marshall and intentional walks to Tanin and Maguire. Mike Mano came within inches of being the hero, but his hard line drive was caught to end the bid.

Pete Daniels started the winning two-run rally in the sixth with a single to left. He stole second and scored the tying run easily when Hansberry pulled a triple down the right field line. Dave Charland then dropped a textbook suicide squeeze bunt to rescue Hansberry with the winning run.

Central didn't go meekly, however, getting a runner to third in the bottom of the seventh on a walk, stolen base and passed ball. But, with the tying run 90 feet away, a foul pop to catcher Daniels ended the threat.

Tom Tanin, Tom Gardner and Mike Maguire spanked two hits each for Andover, which was forced to play without second baseman Ryan Moynihan once again.

The Phillips Academy baseball team, which led the Central New England Prep School League with a 10-4 regular season record this spring, had some standout performances from Andover residents.

Pitcher-shortstop Gus Quattlebaum hit .535, freshman outfielder Todd Harris .457, sophomore second baseman Brian Flanagan .405, first baseman Paul Lisiak .321 and speedy leadoff batter and center fielder Mike Sullivan .306.

Quattlebaum was also 3-1 and Mike Famiglietti, who doubles as a third baseman, 3-0 on the mound for the Big Blue.

Flanagan and Harris spanked two hits apiece, while Lisiak had one safety and Quattlebaum scored a run and pitched strong relief as PA edged Tabor Academy 3-1 in its regular season finale.

Harris and Flanagan were members of the 1988 Andover National Little League All-Star tournament team that won district, state, New England and Regional championships to qualify for the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa.

That team, among the four best in the United States and eight best in the world, lost its World Series opener to Spring, Texas 8-2 before beating Puerto Rico 2-1 and losing to Saudi Arabia 2-1 despite a no-hitter by the Andover pitcher.

Phillips competed in the four-team Central New England Prep School Tournament last weekend at UMass-Amherst, beating Worcester Academy 11-7 in the semifinals before bowing to Cushing Academy 9-8 in the championship game.

Todd Harris contributed four hits and scored three runs in the title game against Cushing, while Paul Lisiak had three hits and two RBI against Worcester.

Brian Flanagan drove home four runs in the two games and Gus Quattlebaum had a pair of sageties in each contest.

Andover will have a team entered in the highly competitive Northeast Baseball League this summer.

The semi-pro league features top-caliber ball and in recent years, if an Andover resident wanted to play, he had to take his chances trying out for the North Andover Cardinals.

Ed Kelley, father of former Boston College basketball captain Ted Kelley and currently a volunteer assistant coach-scout for the Merrimack College womens' basketball team, had a team in the league more than a decade ago but was eventually forced to disband the club.

The new team, sponsored by a South Lawrence dry cleaning establishment and put together by former Andover High pitcher-centerfielder Kevin Rourke, got into the league almost by accident.

Current Haverhill resident Rourke had played in the Greater Lawrence-Greater Lawrence League, which features several Andover teams, the past few years and had been given control of a team to put in that same league this summer.

But complications arose and Rourke soon found himself on the outside of the GLGL looking in.

That's when he made a few phone calls, and his timing was impeccable. The day Kevin contacted Northeast officials was the same day Amesbury dropped out of the league to create an opening.

The Andover team looks like a Andover High alumni group, with the roster featuring such former AHS standouts as Steve Surette, Glenn Allard, Mark Tucker, Cam and Scott Deery, Chris Sapuppo, John Glynn, Peter Reming, Steve Howes, Bill Weidman and Rourke.

Ace reliever Bob Henderson is also on the squad.

Mark Tucker, who has beefed up since his high school days, played some baseball in Australia while living Down Under for several months late last year and the first part of 1992.

The Andover entry opens play next Tuesday night.

"They're throwing us to the wolves right away," noted Rourke. "We open with the (North Andover) Cardinals."

Andover will call Doherty Middle School its home field but, because there is a lack of field space in town this summer, "we can only play five of our 28 games at home," said Rourke.

The Andover Hockey Shop team in the Greater Lawrence-Greater Lowell League also looks like an Andover High alumni squad, with Leo Gravell's club including Scott Wallace, Mike Moriarty, Shane Smith and Mark Doherty.

John Perry of Andover has been voted by his teammates a tri-captain of the 1992 University of New Hampshire football team.

Perry earned all-New England and all-Yankee Conference honors as a wide receiver for the Wildcats last fall, as UNH qualified for the NCAA I-AA playoffs.

Perry graduates this spring with a double major in history and communications. He will attend graduate school in the fall.

Andover's Sean Finneran, who attended Central Catholic and earned numerous local and statewide honors, is a freshman nose guard projected as a starter for UNH next September.

Assumption College sophomore Chris Eggert, a pitcher-first baseman, and Merrimack College junior pitcher Dave Miles, both of Andover, were recently named to the Northeast-10 Conference weekly honor roll in baseball.

Eggert, who finished the season 5-1 on the mound with a 4.37 ERA and 32 strikeouts in 47.1 innings, fired a shutout at Quinnipiac and hit .476 for the week (10-for-21) he was honored. The Greyhounds' standout also hit a sizzling .425 over 35 games, scoring 24 runs and collecting 21 RBI.

Eggert, the Eastern Massachusetts Division 1 Player-of-the-Year in 1990 when Andover High reached the state semifinals, has signed a contract to play in the New York Metropolitan League this summer.

Miles, a big righthander who graduated from Central Catholic, won two games for Merrimack during the week including a four-hit gem against St. Michael's College.

The ace of the staff finished the season with a 6-2 record and 2.36 ERA for a Warriors' team that had a losing mark.

Dave Blank, who helped pitch Andover High to the State Division 1 baseball championship last spring, had a respectable freshman campaign on the mound for South Florida and will play in the prestigious Cape Cod League this summer.

Blank was used primarily as a middle reliever for the Golden Bulls, who enjoyed a winning season, and earlier this spring he was one of several South Florida hurlers who combined for a no-hitter against Bethune-Cookman.

He also appeared in a game against traditional Division 1 powerhouse UMiami, tossing one shutout inning of relief, and faced former Andover High teammate John Russell who tossed six innings of relief when UMass-Amherst battled South Florida in a game telecast on cable TV locally.

Blank, who is back in Andover, dropped in at the Andover-Central Catholic game earlier this week and watched his former teammates rock the Raiders 18-4.

Two Andover girls, Amy Daniels and Tara Ryan, are vying for Female Athlete-of-the-Year honors at Governor Dummer Academy.

Both are three-sport standouts and either one could capture the school's top sports honor to be announced soon.

Andy Shea has just finished his third year at Dickinson College.

The former Phillips Academy star athlete has started in left field and earned three varsity baseball letters at Dickinson.

The baseball program at the college is slowly improving, after a series of down years, and Shea has a shot at being elected captain for the 1993 season.

Younger brother John Shea is a junior at Governor Dummer Academy where he is a second year starter and letter-winner at third base.

The power hitter is batting cleanup for GDA and has produced a number of key RBI with timely base hits.

Shea was also a fullback-middle linebacker on the school's championship football team last fall.

At last check Governor Dummer was 6-4 in baseball.

A second Andover resident on the Dummer baseball team is senior Ted Capeless, the club's starting first baseman.

Mike Lane finished the baseball season at University of Massachusetts Lowell hitting .305 with 33 RBI and 23 runs scored.

Lane started the campaign by hitting close to .500 in Florida and leading the Chiefs in runs batted in.

Mike starred in football, wrestling and baseball at Central Catholic and started his collegiate baseball career at Florida Southern.

Lane, who was also at the Andover-Central baseball game along with younger brother Chris Lane who plays varsity football (quarterback) at Colgate University, will play for the Methuen Giants this summer.

Former Andover High standout catcher Keith Abernathy, who transferred from UMass-Amherst to Salem State College, was hitting .333 at last check for the Vikings (24-for-72).

Abernathy, who also played some shortstop and pitched at AHS, was among the Mass. State College Athletic Conference batting leaders.

Two other former Andover High baseball stars, Tom Murray and Joe Iarrobino, are in Baton Rouge,

Pirates, A's, Sox and Tigers win in Little League action

The Braves, Pirates and Red Sox have taken the early lead in the 13-Year-old Little League.

Pirates 7 - White Sox 5

Brian Jordan and Jason Deranian paced the Pirates' hitting with three hits apiece. Andrew Marshall pitched well for the win. Danny Kelley's bases-loaded triple was a key blow for the Pirates and Craig Hartwell and Greg Wojtkun were hitting stars for the White Sox.

The Mets unleashed an early hitting barrage. Keith Grant, Eric Earle and Andy Pojacek crushed the ball for the Mets. Joe Sciolla was the starting and winning pitcher.

A's 8 - Mets 7

The A's broke up a 5-5 tie in the top of the sixth to go ahead 8-5. Jeremy Schofield and Shaun Conners had key hits. Joe Maglio and Jonathan Fusco helped a stage a last-inning rally that fell short. Kevin Farrahar and Elliot Sykes had key defensive plays for the A's and Shaun Connors was the winning pitcher.

Red Sox 11 - Giants 10

The Red Sox edged by the Giants in an 11-10 game. Jason Monarcha and Ryan Games pitched well for the Red Sox. Erich Heinlein had a key hit and Mike Garvin made key defensive plays at third base. Albert Kwon tripled and Brian Murphy had two hits for the Giants.

Tigers 11 - Braves 9

Lefty Danny Gosselin was the winning pitcher in the 11-9 win for the Tigers. David Weiner and Rob Busby had two hits apiece. Pat Annesse and Steven Vickers led the Braves' attack with two hits apiece.

Louisiana today to open play in the NCAA Regionals.

The pair play for Providence College, 32-26 won-lost record, which was an upset winner in last weekend's Big East Tournament.

Providence beat UConn 5-3 in the final game when catcher Jim Foster launched a dramatic two-out, two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth to snap a 3-3 tie and win it.

The Friars, seeded No. 6 in the six-team field, open play in the double-elimination tourney tonight against top-seeded host Louisiana State University (LSU).

Oklahoma State, Tulane and Southern Alabama are also in the field, with the Regional survivor joining seven other Regional champs at the annual College World Series in Omaha, Nebraska next week.

"I told Joey to bring a toothbrush and a couple of changes of clothes, 'cause I doubt they'll be staying in Baton Rouge very long," laughed Joe Iarrobino Sr.

Meanwhile Tom Murray's mother, Ellen Bedford, indicated earlier this week that she would travel to Baton Rouge to watch the Friars play.

Murray, who is rumored to have a shot at being a late-round draft pick in the upcoming pro baseball amateur lottery, starts in right field for Providence.

He has a batting average that continues to hover around the .300 mark, and the junior outfielder (last year of eligibility) had five home runs and a slugging percentage over .500 at last glance.

One of the biggest games of his college career came earlier this month when he rocked Brown University pitching for four hits including a two-run homer.

Iarrobino is biding his time as a freshman designtaed hitter and pinch-hitter, having batted .260 in limited service behind graduating seniors Earl Smith and Kevin Burns.

Iarrobino should get his chance to start next year, and may even be in the starting lineup if upcoming shoulder surgery is successful.

Iarrobino has battled a shoulder problem suffered while playing football his junior year at Andover High.

"He was scheduled for surgery again Thursday (today), but it was pushed back to June 4 because of the tournament," noted his father. "They say they can fix the problem and he can be playing in the field next year. But it's been a long haul for him. We'll believe it when it actually happens."

It's been a good run for Iarrobino the past two years as he helped Andover High to the State Division 1 title last year, was named MVP of the state tourney after blasting the game-winning hit in the championship game against Milford, and was recently measured for the rings PC players will receive as Big East champs.

Matt Orlando, the starting second baseman on Andover High's state championship baseball team last year, played well as a freshman at Trinity College.

Orlando started the campaign as Trinity's backup second baseman, but eventually unseated the veteran incumbent at that position and proceded to hit .382 and start every game towards the end of the season.

Peter Radulski, whose younger brother Rich is a senior second baseman who alternates as a starter for Andover High, is a pitcher on the University of Maine baseball team.

Angela Chongris of Andover scored eight goals and assisted on two others for the Brooks School girls' lacrosse team in a 19-10 victory over Middlesex School of Concord earlier this spring.

Other Andover residents on the Brooks squad are Shaunyelle McDonald, Robyn Minasian, Julie Gardner and Jane Kim.

Bill Batchelder is home in Andover after his freshman year at Creighton University where he played as a catcher and infrequent pitcher for the Division 1 baseball power.

Batchelder will transfer to the University of Maine next fall, joining current Andover High pitching phenom Jim Hanning

This summer Batchelder intends to play for the Lowell Braves of the Eastern Mass. League.

Owner Lena Nargozian and artisan Sona Nalbandian

Nargozian Oriental Rug Gallery, Inc.

Nargozian Oriental Rug Gallery, Inc. is pleased to announce the opening of a new gallery in Winchester Center, 1 Thompson St., Winchester, Mass. The new gallery will primarily exhibit and sell semi-antique and antique carpets. They will also deal in textiles and quilts and carry Caucasian and Persian tribal, as well as village, rugs and saddle bags.

The Winchester opening will be celebrated on June 6 and 7 and continue throughout the month. The community is welcome to come in to browse and view the special collection being exhibited. Refreshments and pastries will be served.

Andover will remain a full-service gallery and continue to do most of the restoration. Through repair, a damaged or worn rug is made useful, in its original way or some new way. Repairing and restoration of rugs is performed on the premises by artisan weaver Sona Nalbandian, owner Lena Nargozian's mother. Forms of repair include reweaving, refringing, overcasting ends, salvaging sides, complete reweaving of holes and patching. Restoration is invisible to the untrained eye.

Nargozian Oriental Rug Gallery, Inc. offers expert hand cleaning, appraisals, repairing, sales, purchase and consignments.

The skilled artisans at Nargozian Oriental Rug Gallery, Inc. will help you acquire the appropriate carpet for your needs and preserve and repair your precious rugs. They will update records for estate and insurance appraisals to present market value. Lena Nargozian will come to your home for a consultation. Free estimates and consultations are by appointment only. Gift certificates are available for weddings, graduations and other special occasion. Gifts of rugs are cherished forever.

Nargozian Oriental Rug Gallery, Inc. is located at 8 High St., Andover. Hours are Monday through Friday 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturdays and evening by appointment only. Local youngsters raise $416 for Easter Seals

Youngsters from the ANA YMCA Childcare Corp. in Andover raised $416 in an Easter Seal Hop-n-ing April 27 to help people with disabilities.

The children spent the previous week learning about disabilities what causes them, how disabilities affect people's everyday lives and the equipment they used to cope.

Each child secured pledges for every hop performed during a three-minute hop-n-ing.

Easter Seal services include summer camp, therapeutic swim programs, home-health care, physical, occupational and speech therapy, equipment loan, support groups for people recovering from strokes and information and referral services.

Last year more than 15,000 children across Massachusetts learned about disabilities and hopped for Easter Seals, raising $246,000. The hop-n-ing is sponsored by TJX Companies Inc.

'Stalking law' preys on domestic violence

By Lisa Boudreau

Six weeks after the highly publicized case of a Lawrence woman who was stalked and killed by her common-law husband, Gov. Weld this week signed into law legislation that makes stalking a crime.

The new law defines stalking as "systematic harassment" by following and/or threatening so that a person fears danger. If convicted of stalking, a person faces up to five years in prison and a $1,000 fine. If convicted while subject to a restraining order, the penalty is a minimum of one year in jail without parole.

"This law helps level the playing field for victims of domestic violence," said former state Rep. Susan Tucker, of 6 Farrwood Drive.

Ms. Tucker, who was instrumental in drafting and lobbying for laws to help victims of domestic violence during her tenure as state rep. in the '80s, said she was encouraged by the new legislation, but added that "No law is going to solve the problem of domestic violence. Public attitudes have to change too."

Andover Police Lt. Philip Froburg said the law will be "extremely helpful" for law enforcement officers.

"Before, there was a really gray area as to how far the police could go in determining if someone was in violation of a restraining order," he said.

The "systematic stalking and harassment" language, said Lt. Froburg, will give police and the victim the upper hand.

Reaction to the highly publicized Lawrence woman's murder indicates to Ms. Tucker that politicians are listening to battered women.

"Ten years ago, stalking was considered harassment, a misdemeanor. Law enforcement officials couldn't do anything about it. This law gives them the framework to start impacting on the problem," she said.

"I'd like to see the public get behind domestic violence the way it did against drunk driving. We need to start education of kids in school. I'd like to see campaigns like 'real men don't hit women,' like the 'friends don't let friends drive drunk,' " Ms. Tucker said.

According to a report from the Coalition for Battered Women, in 1989, one woman died because of domestic violence every 22 days. In 1991 that figure was up to one woman every 16 days. In April of this year, it was revised to one woman every nine days.

The United States has three times as many animal shelters as shelters for battered women and children, according to Ms. Tucker. State funding for battered women's programs was $5.4 million in 1989. It dropped to $4.8 million in 1991 and remains there today. But Ms. Tucker has some hope for improvement.

"The governor and the legislature will be adding money to this budget. I have great hope they'll add significantly to these resources for battered women," Ms. Tucker said Tuesday.

Local man could be first charged under 'stalking law'

By Don Staruk

An Andover man may be the first person in the state charged under the new "stalking law."

John Valerio, 30, of 44 Haggetts Pond Road, an assistant district attorney in Suffolk County, was arrested Monday, May 18, and charged with threatening his former girlfriend with a handgun. The new law was signed by Gov. Weld only hours earlier and went into effect immediately.

The law defines stalking as "systematic harassment" by following and/or threatening so that a person fears danger. If convicted of stalking, a person faces up to five years in prison and a $1,000 fine. If convicted while subject to a restraining order, the penalty is a minimum of one year in jail without parole.

Robert Jones, a spokesperson in Attorney General Scott Harshbarger's office, said Wednesday no decision has been made as to whether the new law applies.

Maria McCarthy, 31, of Hancock Street in Boston, Mr. Valerio's ex-girlfriend, alleged Mr. Valerio threatened to kill her and himself with a gun in her home Monday, according to reports. Mr. Valerio then allegedly followed her and another man to an apartment on Clarendon Street where he again threatened them. Ms. McCarthy and her companion called police and Mr. Valerio was arrested.

He pleaded innocent at his arraignment in Boston Municipal Court Tuesday and was released on his own recognizance. The court issued a restraining order prohibiting Mr. Valerio from contacting Ms. McCarthy as part of the bail agreement, according to Mr. Jones.

Mr. Valerio is married. He was placed on administrative leave without pay, according to an official at the Suffolk County District Court . Police confiscated a handgun used in the incident and took two others from his home. Mr. Valerio has a gun permit issued by Andover police. Andover police were not sure Wednesday whether that permit would be suspended pending the outcome of the charges.

A trial date has been set for June 2. The case is being handled by the Attorney General's office to avoid any conflict of interest, according to Mr. Jones.

Not every home can carry off a weather vane, but this one adds its own nostalgic appeal to the top of a house on Summer Street.

From Andover's library to Old North Church

Andover contractor has knowledge, experience

Gino Zaffini of Andover has worked on a lot of buildings – hundreds of them, in fact.

Some of the more notable for the founder and president of Olympic/E-Z Builders Inc. have been Wellesley College, Old North Church and the Archdiocese of Boston.

In addition, Mr. Zaffini's affiliate, MANSCO Contractors Inc., has completed projects such as the restoration and new addition to Andover's Memorial Hall Library.

He's also taken on the restoration of several town halls, including Andover's and Winchester's, as well as several schools in Woburn and Leominster.

Mr. Zaffini has been a contractor and developer since 1968. To date, he has been involved in various residential developments totaling close to 200 homes.

Some of the areas where he's developed and constructed new homes and renovated others are Andover, Needham, Wellesley, Danvers, Cape Cod, Medford and Dover.

Olympic/E-Z Builders is currently working on this addition to a house on Dascomb Road.

With his knowledge and experience, Mr. Zaffini feels that Olympic/E-Z Builders offers quality workmanship at affordable prices.

"And that applies to the customer who needs only one storm door or one window, as well as the customer who is looking for an addition or a new home," he said.

Mr. Zaffini, who founded Olympic/E-Z Builders in 1977, is anticipating to move the company's main office to a new location in Andover within the next 90 days, he said.

Commission tells how to remove hazardous paints

The hazards of lead-based paints have become an urgent public health issue. Medical case histories show that thousands of children face irreversible mental and physical damage resulting from exposure to lead in their homes.

Since the use of lead-based paint on buildings in Massachusetts began in the late-17th century and was a standard treatment until World War II (and in many cases was used up until 1978), virtually all historic Massachusetts' properties that retain their early painted woodwork contain potentially hazardous levels of lead, according to Leslie Sampou, project coordinator for the Massachusetts Historical Commission.

The commission and the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities have prepared a publication called "Historic Buildings and the Lead Paint Hazard," available to the public free of charge.

The publication discusses testing for lead, how children are exposed to lead poisoning, removal methods and cleanup and also includes excerpts from the state regulations for the prevention and control of lead poisoning.

The historical commission also offers technical assistance to homeowners to provide information on lead paint removal methods that are appropriate and non-destructive to historic properties. Owners of properties listed on the state register of historic places, upon receiving an order from a state agency to delead, are required to notify the MHC before paint removal begins.

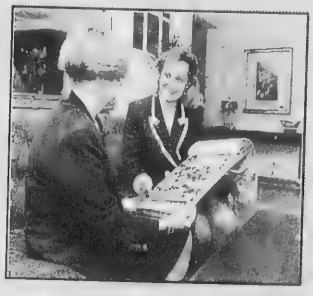

Andover's history allows one to look back in time, as this dormitory near the Phillips campus shows. Some of today's more elaborate homes borrow this age's distinctive style.

Bank of Boston will loan more than money to homeowners. People who visit the bank before June 19 can borrow any of the six Hometime videos, which began its sixth season on public television in 1992 with Dean Johnson and new co-host Susanne Egli.

How and how to

Bank of Boston helps homeowners first pay for projects, then shows how to do them

Industrious homeowners considering spring home improvement projects can get free instruction as well as attractive financing through Bank of Boston. Consumers can borrow, at no cost or obligation, any of six PBS-produced Hometime home improvement videos featuring the most popular projects at any of the bank's 234 branches in New England.

Bank of Boston is the first bank in the nation to offer this comprehensive home improvement assistance program featuring in-depth instructional videos and competitive financing options.

"Homeowners planning home improvements need the wherewithal to turn their current home into their dream home," said Ken Reed, director of retail marketing.

"Many need information about the types of projects they are considering. Most need cash or credit. Bank of Boston is offering free home improvement instruction with financial assistance at very good rates."

The 30- to 60-minute PBS Hometime videos are ideal for do-it-yourselfers. Featuring home improvement guru Dean Johnson and new series host, Susanne Egli, they offer in-depth instruction and hands-on demonstrations of the most common projects, including kitchen, bathroom and deck improvements; basic landscaping; finishing a basement; and home decorating. While the PBS Hometime videos are currently being sold in retail stores for $10 each, these six videos may be borrowed at no charge by anyone who visits a Bank of Boston branch through June 19. No deposit is required.

Homeowners who seize the opportunity to borrow one or more videos may also want to take advantage of Bank of Boston's home equity loan, competitively priced at 9.5 percent for one- to five-year repayment terms; 10.9 percent for six- to 10-year repayment terms; or the bank's home equity line of credit, priced at the prime rate, plus 0 percent through Dec. 31.

Home equity loans and home equity lines of credit offer attractive financing options for consumers planning large or small home improvements. Consumers can also use home equity loans and home equity lines of credit for any other financial need, such as college tuition payments or the purchase of a new vehicle.

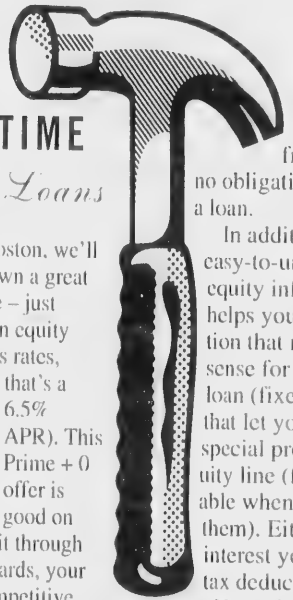

These products, which use the equity in the home as collateral, enable lenders to offer lower interest rates than those on unsecured personal loans. The amount that a customer may borrow is based on the amount of existing equity in the home. In some cases, consumers may enjoy significant tax benefits, since interest on home equity credit may be tax deductible.

Home improvement projects continue to become more popular every year. According to the National Association of the Remodeling Industry, Americans spent $111 billion on remodeling last year, up from $80.3 billion in 1985 and $49.3 billion in 1983.

Consumers who want more information about the videos should contact the nearest Bank of Boston branch. Homeowners who seek more specific information about Bank of Boston's home equity products should visit a branch or call 1-800-BKB-LOAN.

Bank of Boston Corp. is a New England-based superregional bank holding company with assets of $32.7 billion.

Nailing Down Our Great Home Equity Rate Is Easy. In Fact, We'll Even Help You With The Addition.

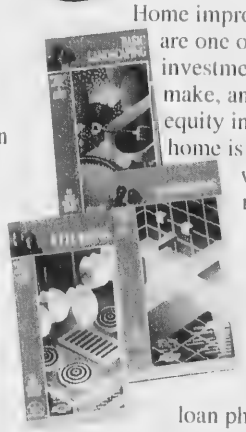

HOMETIME
Equity Loans

At Bank of Boston, we'll help you nail down a great home equity rate – just Prime* + 0 for an equity line (with today's rates, that's a 6.5% APR). This Prime + 0 offer is good on your line of credit through 12/31/92 (afterwards, your rate will be a competitive Prime + 2%, which corresponds to an 8.5% APR). Or, if you prefer an equity loan, you'll pay as little as 9.5% APR depending on the loan term you select. Either way, you'll pay no application fees or closing costs.

HOME EQUITY LINE
PRIME +0

More than just great rates, we'll also help you nail down a new deck. Finish a basement. Or remodel your kitchen. It's all part of our Hometime Equity Loans program that offers free rental of home improvement videos from the popular PBS show, Hometime, hosted by Dean Johnson and Susanne Egli. Just stop by any Bank of Boston branch and sign out any video. Not only is the video rental free, but there's no obligation to apply for a loan.

In addition, we offer easy-to-understand home equity information that helps you choose the option that makes the most sense for you: An equity loan (fixed payments that let you budget for a special project) or an equity line (funds are available when you need them). Either way, the interest you pay may be tax deductible.

Home improvements are one of the best investments you can make, and using the equity in your home is a smart way to finance them. For more information or to apply over the phone, call our loan phone at 1-800-BKB-LOAN. Or better yet, stop by any Bank of Boston branch and ask about our Hometime Equity Loans. But don't wait too long. You have only until June 19, 1992 to apply for the special Prime + 0 equity line rate.

Call 1-800-BKB LOAN for current rates. *Prime is the highest domestic prime rate listed in the Money Rates section of The Wall Street Journal. After you have opened an equity line plan, the APR may vary as often as each month but will never be greater than 18%. You must carry insurance on the property that secures this plan. 10.9% APR for certain equity loans with longer terms. Consult your tax advisor about the deductibility of interest. Bruce Yennaco and his father, Bob Yennaco, stand in front of some of the inventory at their store, Granz Inc., located at the Nettles Plaza on Route 28 in Salem.

Customers keep coming back to Granz

By Tommy Gates

Granz Inc., at the Nettles Plaza on Route 28 in Salem, has really changed in the last 57 years since then owner, Al Granz, had Granz Mower and Marine. But the faithful customers certainly haven't changed. They keep coming back.

Bob and Judy Yennaco and their two sons, Bruce and Jay, are a different breed of cat in a big business, with first-rate service being the number one priority on their agenda.

When you walk into Granz Inc. in hope of purchasing a mower, tractor or snowblower, it's like getting a schooling course on what you need, what kind of tractor or mower would suit you best for the terrain of your property and how to run and maintain your new piece of equipment.

In a day where a lot of businesses are only interested in making that sale and then saying "Sayonara" to you when you go out the door, it seems that customers tend to become one of the Granz family when purchasing a piece of equipment there.

First off, their service is second to none and that's why they only serve their own customers. Secondly, Bob, Bruce and Judy Yennaco spend as much time with their mailing list of all their customers as they do in the shop.

A purchase of a piece of equipment from Granz will have newsletters sent to you telling you when to take advantage of service checks on your equipment, or when they can pick it up for you and have it dropped back off, and other personal tending to that other businesses would never take the time to do.

> The walls are full of pictures, awards and plaques that signify the excellence of the Yennaco family's business for the past 56 years is the oldest running business on Route 28.

A walk through the immaculate Granz Inc. showroom shows you that this place isn't one of the most respected businesses around for nothing. The walls are full of pictures, awards and plaques that signify the excellence of the Yennaco family's business for the past 56 years, and it is the oldest running business on Route 28.

Granz Inc. also has the largest parts selection in the Merrimack Valley and if you don't think you can afford a new tractor, mower or snowblower, Bob and Bruce Yennaco usually have several used pieces of equipment for sale at modest prices, and these, too, have been serviced to the max by the proud and caring people at Granz Inc.

In short, where money situations are limited these days, you can be assured that your purchase of a piece of equipment at Granz Inc. will be a rewarding one that features tremendous service, your top-of-the-line product and a caring business family that has kept them coming back and rolling through the turnstiles for almost 60 years.

PPG, a painting sponsor for Olympians' gold

With more than 15,000 US Olympic hopefuls using the United States Olympic Committee's training facilities each year--pounding, grinding and pedaling their way to victory--not just any paint could withstand the rigors of superior athletic training.

That's why the USOC has partnered with PPG Architectural Finishes Inc. (PPGAF)--maker of Pittsburg Paints, Lucite Paints, and Olympic Stain--as the exclusive paint and stain supplier for US Olympic Training Centers.

And while tens of thousands cheer on the 1992 US Olympic Team, do-it-yourselfers can share in the victory by purchasing products made by PPGAF, a wholly-owned subsidiary of PPG Industries.

In addition to PPG's multimillion dollar sponsorship, the company has made a $1 million in-kind product contribution for use during renovation and construction at the three Olympic training centers in Colorado Springs, CO; Lake Placid,NY; and the new facility being built in San Diego.

"PPG products have played an important role in supporting our Olympians," said Peter C. Kautza, director of the facilities operations division for the USOC.

Pittsburg Paints, Lucite Paints and Olympic Stina are available at paint and decorating stores, home centers and specialty products stores.

"MORE THAN EVER, YOUR ACCOUNTANT WOULD AGREE WITH ME..."

"A home Equity Creditline is a smart way to borrow. As an accountant (I'm a licensed C.P.A.), I know that a home Equity Creditline lets you take maximum advantage of tax breaks. As a banker (I'm also Chief Financial Officer at Andover Bank), I think you should know that interest on an Andover Bank Equity Creditline, in most cases, is fully tax deductible for loans up to $100,000. (Consult your tax advisor for details.) Better yet, an Andover Bank Equity Creditline has a low rate of interest when compared with ordinary auto, home improvement, or credit card loans.

But best of all, an Andover Bank Equity Creditline is so flexible, you can segment it for different purposes by converting portions of your credit line to a fixed rate during a period of rising interest rates. For example, you may want to segment your variable rate equity loan into two separate fixed rate loans such as a three year loan for your new car and a seven year loan for home improvements.

For more information about the smartest way to borrow in times like these, call or stop by any of Andover Bank's eight convenient Merrimack Valley offices. We're sure you'll agree that at Andover Bank, you're the most important customer we'll ever have."

Inventing new ways to look at the world

Millwork Door & Window is to the custom woodworking field as trees are to the lumber industry – a necessity.

Manufacturing parts, pieces and entire systems for other woodworking shops, the Groveland company provides wholesale custom millwork, such as hard-to-find work, Victorian details, custom turning and curved molding.

The 17-year-old company also stocks:

Stairs: Five lines.

Moldings: Parts and two of its own. Wood-bending capabilities and custom turnings are a specialty, along with custom-cut profile moldings – straight, round and elliptical – for doors and windows.

Doors: Custom-built doors in sizes from cabinets to boat houses. Special glass is never a problem since Millwork has its own glass company.

Catalogs: More than 100 pages depicting all phases of millwork. Even the complicated math is covered in figuring good millwork. The catalog is fast becoming the cornerstone of the custom-woodworking industry.

GET ANDERSEN'S VERY DURABLE PATIO DOOR AT A VERY SOLID VALUE.

This is the new Andersen® Perma-Shield® Frenchwood™ patio door.

The interior is clear pine. The look is timeless. But this is more than just a beautiful door.

When the weather is bad, the new Frenchwood door looks great. Because both center panels glide on a track that overlaps the raised sill, it can take torrential rain and high-powered winds and come through high and dry.

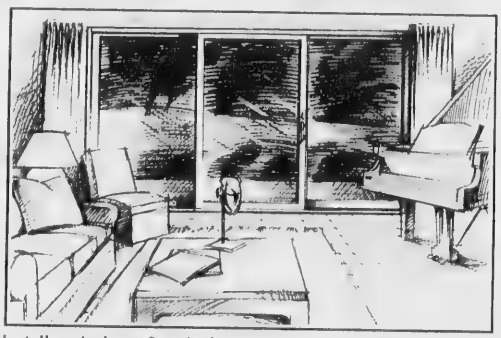

To further fight adversity, Andersen High-Performance or High-Performance Sun insulating safety glass is standard with every Frenchwood door.

Install an Andersen® patio door, and you'll have a real sense of security. For one thing, you won't be bothered by the elements. Because the harder the wind blows, the tighter it'll push against the weatherstrip.

What's more, you can feel a lot more secure against break-ins. By virtue of its gliding characteristics and a special dead lock system, hundreds of pounds of pull won't budge these doors.

For beauty, energy efficiency, and added security, your safest bet is an Andersen patio door.

Historical groups give preservation awards

By Barbara Thibault

The Andover Historical Society and the Andover Historical Commission announce the recipients of Andover's annual preservation awards.

Certificates of Appreciation for Historic Preservation for landscape and preservation went to 59 and 63 Central St.; exterior preservation to the Shawsheen Branch of the Lawrence Savings Bank; landscape preservation to 89 Prospect St. and 13 Sunset Rock Road; and for the preservation of school history and the quality of student life to the Trustees of Punchard Free School.

Historic preservation certificates for adaptive reuse were awarded to the Fry Circle Community Center and the former Ballard Vale Mill; sympathetic addition to 253 Andover St. and for exterior and landscape preservation to 34 School St.

Frye Circle Community Center

The Andover Housing Authority manages 96 new units and oversees activities at the Frye Circle Community Center at 256 North Main St., an 1874 Queen Anne brick and shingle carriage house formerly part of the estate called "The Croft." 59 Central St.

59 Central St., built in 1734, has a landscape that represents a living history like a stream of time. The house, a Georgian style, is sited on the knoll of a Colonial thoroughfare and remnant fieldstone walls delineate boundaries. The latticed arbor reminiscent of the 19th century was placed so that the house might boast a fashionable vine. Early 20th century photographs show an addition to this old house, which is now 63 and how important treillage is to each unit together and apart.

63 Central St.

63 Central St., Colonial Revival style from 1911, was separated from #59 in 1935 and moved to its present location. The park-like setting is testimony to a continuing 19th century influence on the landscape. Local architect Addison LeBoutillier's original design was easily converted to a free standing home. The treillage continues to play a unifying role particularly with the addition of an

You may be able to erase many of your videotape problems – without erasing your videotape – by heeding the hints in a helpful booklet.

What's the best tape to use in your camcorder? How often should you clean your tape heads? What can you do to extend the life of your favorite videotapes?

The answers to these questions and many more can be found in the booklet, which is available free of charge to those who write in and ask for it.

Called "Tape It Right," the 16-page four-color booklet is from the experts at TDK, a videotape manufacturer.

It includes sections on how to make great-looking VCR recordings; VCR programming tips; how to get the best audio from your video; tips for better camcorder productions; tape-choosing advice; and VCR maintenance and tape storage.

"A lot of people own VCRs and camcorders, but very few of them are taking full advantage of their amazing capabilities," observes TDK national sales manager Chuck Roth. "Our new free booklet is written with these people in mind. Anybody who reads it is certain to get more enjoyment from his or her video equipment."

A rose is a rose is a rose . .

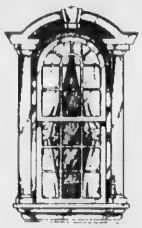

For centuries, the beauty and fragrance of roses have captured the imagination of people from the world over. Ancient historical accounts are filled with references to gardens abloom with roses, including the Garden of Eden, ancient Persia and the Hanging Gardens of Babylon.

Today, roses are as popular as ever. In fact, four U.S. states, the District of Columbia and England have all chosen this sweet-scented treasure as their official flower.

Though requiring more attention than other flowers and shrubs, roses are definitely worth the extra toil.

Although many other flowers share the word "rose" as part of their common names, true roses are members of the genus Rosa, which contains more than 100 species and literally thousands of varieties. Their showy flowers, thorny stems and leathery green leaves are familiar to all gardeners. Blooms come in white, red, pink, orange, yellow, lavender and all shades in between. Some varieties even bear bicolored or multicolored blossoms, such as "Circus,""American Heritage," "Piccadilly" and "Sutter's Gold."

Besides adding a splash of color in the garden, roses enhance the landscape in a variety of other ways. For example, miniature roses, which grow less than 12 inches tall, are perfect for edging, low borders, ground covers and in containers. Popular varieties include "Beauty Secret," "Cinderella" and "Starina." Both hardy and disease resistant, floribundas are the best all-purpose landscape roses.

ing constructed in 1920 for a Village branch. This triangular shaped brick building topped with clock and bell also once housed a village market, community hall and rental offices.

Today, the Lawrence Savings Bank operates a branch and manages the customary space for the community and rental offices. In 1982, the Lawrence Savings Bank contributed to the noted publication on Shawsheen Village by Edward Roddy, Mills, Mansions and Mergers.

Punchard Free School

Trustees of Punchard Free School, established in 1851, fund a variety of projects to enrich the community at Andover High School.

In addition to the preservation of the yearbooks from 1916 to 1991 on microfiche, they have recently supported a video orientation for new students, photo documentation of the annual senior show, the school newspaper and literary magazine, student groups and workshops such as Students Against Driving Drunk (SADD), art displays, field trips and faculty projects.

Copies of the microfiche are available at the Memorial Hall Library, Andover High School and the Andover Historical Society.

89 Prospect St.: Holt farmhouse

89 Prospect St., historically known as the Holt farmhouse, remains on land that was farmed by seven generations of this founding family from the 17th century until the 1880s.

Today, this farmstead is again owned by descendants. The house tops Holt's Hill and faces south with a view of Boston on clear days.

It is said that a crowd of townspeople gathered here to observe the smoke and cannon explosions of the Battle of Bunker Hill.

Even now, the colonial landscape is evident, especially since The Trustees of Reservations and Andover Village Improvement Society (AVIS) manage much of the former Holt acreage as public open space.

13 Sunset Rock Road

13 Sunset Rock Road, a Colonial Reproduction built in 1937, illustrates how a 20th-century dwelling and landscape are sensitive to the historical context of the surrounding environment, particularly the integrity of the setting. Sunset Rock Road was part of the colonial road to Wilmington and then the romantics of the 19th century found "sunset rock," one of which is in the rear of this property. The house design, large shade trees, ornamental and fruit trees and stone walls provide that old familiar comfort of former homesteads.

The house tops Holt's Hill and faces south with a view of Boston on clear days.

A special thanks to the Review Committee Norma Gammon, Andover Historical Commissioner, Steve Kearn, local businessman, Judy Wright, landscape consultant and Jim Batchelder, Andover Historical Society board member.

A photographic exhibit of the award winners is on view for the summer at Memorial Hall Library.

Fleas can be a major problem

There's no such thing as a minor flea problem, during a short, 30 day time-span, a female flea can produce 100 new ones, that is, unless you begin battling them early.

According to the HomeCare Council, the consumer education division of Enforcer Home Care Products, the best way to solve the flea problem is to use a combination of products that treats all affected areas:

- Yard: At the first sign of warmer weather, spray your yard
- Home: Look for products containing Precor an "insect growth regulator" which biologically prevents flea eggs and larvae from maturing into adult fleas. This eliminates the reproduction cycle and prevents reinfestation for up to seven months.
- Pet: Shampoo pets with a PH-balanced pet shampoo that contains natural pyrethrin. In between shampoos, spray pets and their bedding regularly. For cats, look for flea products for cats that are milder than ones used for dogs.

Other flea prevention tips include:

- Start early. The peak season is late summer, so prevent fleas from ever laying eggs in the first place.
- Vacuum and dispose of vacuum bags weekly.

With 10 acres of display gardens in addition to a retail area offering more than 400 types of perennials, as well as shrubs, trees, herbs and annuals, Newbury Perennial Gardens provides visitors with an opportunity to wander, to study and to learn.

The 20 or more theme gardens offer a constantly unfolding display of color and variety. Surrounding the private estate of owner and creator Richard Simkins, the display gardens may be toured (with a nominal fee) throughout the season.

The opportunity to see a variety of garden designs and plantings in their full maturity is helpful to those in the midst of planning a garden or are uncertain about specific varieties and colors. If that does not

Gardening

Reaping rewards of small investment

Gardening is a cheap leisure activity that can take a step toward improving the environment at the same time. And planting a garden provides good physical exercise and saves money on the family food bill.

With a little planning and care – and a small investment – a garden can provide months of enjoyment. Having a successful garden does not require extensive knowledge or a green thumb. Here are some simple tips for beginner gardeners:

• Take Polaroid photos of your lawn and house and bring them to the nursery. It will help determine what types of greenery will look good and grow best in your yard.

• Use composts, mulches and organic fertilizers to help soil stay healthy. Good soil is essential to the growth of any plant because it holds vegetation in place while restraining moisture and nutrients for it to use.

• Prune plants by removing dead stems and leaves. It is important to the development and maintenance of your garden. By cutting away diseased area and thinning out sections to permit more sunlight, flowers will continue to blossom.

• Add to the look of the garden by using trellises or night lighting. Stone statues and strategically placed benches will also add to the design of your yard.

• Keep records of all your horticulture successes and failures. If a particular plant blooms well in your garden, snap a photo of it and keep it in a journal for future reference. If a flower doesn't grow, a record will keep you from repeating the mistake.

A tour of the gardens includes a Geranium Garden with a collection of true geraniums varying in color from white to true blue and in all shades from pink to red.

Waterfall Garden

A Waterfall Garden contains a collection of white May bloomers that cascade down the crevices to the Poppy Garden, featuring perennial and annual poppies blooming from May until frost. Past the poppies is the Grass Garden with perennial grasses of all colors and heights. These ornamental grasses are increasingly being used in home gardens as background accents and many varieties are salt-resistant, allowing their use at sea or roadside.

Flame Garden

Opposite the Poppy Garden, the Flame Garden presents its display of yellow, orange and red flowers with an interspersing of blue. This garden provides the longest season of blooming and its warm tones show richly against the coolness of the green lawns and sparkling pond with gliding swans.

Summer Garden

After passing the Sample Perennial Borders and the orchard and vegetable gardens you will enter the Summer Garden. This is the largest and most formal of the gardens located directly behind the owner's private home. In the center is a shallow goldfish pond with fountain and surrounding garden benches with beds of roses and lavender. As one wanders through the lush display of June color, attention will be drawn through the gardens, down the grand alee overlooking the Parker River and marshes.

White, Hosta and Weeping gardens, to name but a few

Past the West lawn is the White Garden, the Hosta Garden, the Weeping Garden and the "mixed border" of trees, shrubs, perennials and annuals.

Nearly all the plants in the display gardens are available at the garden center. Prices are very reasonable, starting at $1.95 for smaller pots of perennial herbs and $2.95 for quart size perennials. The large selection includes hard-to-find wild flowers, dwarf evergreens and unusual shrubs and trees, such as stewardia, abeliophyllum (white forsythia) and oxydendrum (Sourwood).

Additionally, the firm has unusual annuals and accent patio plants such as agapanthus, hibiscus, oleander, Crepe Myrtle and citrus trees. A complete line of natural and organic fertilizers are also offered with free advice from a friendly and well-informed staff – all very worth a visit.

As an extension to the garden center, The Garden Store at 18 Liberty St. in downtown Newburyport opened this spring. Offering a large selection of seeds, pots, baskets, garden ornaments and gifts for the garden lover, the shop will be open year-round.

The Newbury Perennial Gardens is open seven days, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., and is located at 65 Orchard St. in Byfield-Newbury. Take Exit 55 off Route 95, go east 7/10 mile, then left on Orchard Street for 1.2 miles. Telephone: (508) 462-1144.

Making a home more peaceful

A door slams. The pitter-patter of little feet echo through the house like a stampede of wild elephants. Whatever happened to the peace and quiet of "home sweet home?"

More and more homeowners seem to be asking that question these days because many of them are spending more time at home. The desire for a quiet and comfortable atmosphere is inspiring people to search for ways to soundproof their homes and diminish unwanted noises that come from inside as well as outside the home.

There are many ways to make your home quieter.

Adding fiberglass insulation is one of the most economical. If you are undertaking major renovations or adding a room to your house, consider soundproofing by including insulation and make sure it's a quality product. It can be a relatively simple and inexpensive procedure and can add greatly to the comfort and value of your home.

Third generation for White Street Paint and Wallpaper

Good old-fashioned customer service is the hallmark of White Street Paint and Wallpaper Co. Ira Gold is the third generation of his family to serve the Greater Lawrence community at the store.

The original store, at 19 White St. in Lawrence, was started by Meyer Steinberg in 1948. Bernard and Cynthia Gold, Mr. Steinberg's son-in-law and daughter, now own the store which, though located at 15 Broadway in Lawrence, still retains its White Street name.

White Street Paint is the largest paint and wallpaper store in the area with 9,000 square feet of display and storage space.

It is a full-line dealer of Benjamin Moore Paints and also carries Wilber and Williams paints, Cabot Stains and its newest line, California Paints.

An on-staff wallpaper consultant can answer your questions and help with your decisions. She will even make house calls to help with your decorating projects.

White Street Paint and Wallpaper has 42 years of customer service behind its reputation. This dedication to meeting customers' needs by both custom-mixing paints, and ordering and delivering wallpaper and fabrics, earns the store many customer to customer and contractor to customer referrals.

If spring refurbishing is on your schedule, be sure to stop by.

White Street Paint and Wallpaper Co. is located at 15 Broadway (corner of Essex Street), Lawrence, and the phone number is 688-6078.

The store is open 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday; 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Tuesday and Friday; and 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday.

Recycling

Plastic may be the answer

Have you ever been stopped cold by the question "paper or plastic" at the checkout counter? Well, if you're wondering which choice is better for the environment, it may help to know that plastic bags are recyclable.

Studies conducted by solid waste professionals and consultants estimated 500 million pounds of plastics, including plastic bags, were recycled in 1990. In some curbside collection programs, residents use recyclable plastic bags as a container for recyclables; the bags are recycled along with the collected plastics. In grocery stores, plastic bag recycling collection programs have multiplied nationwide, thanks to collaboration by plastic bag makers and store owners.

More than half the nation's 31,000 supermarkets collect plastic bags for recycling. Consumers return their empty grocery bags and deposit them in special recycling bins in the store. Supermarket recycling programs often accept other plastic bags as well, including produce bags, newspaper delivery bags and retail bags.

Stores that participate in plastic bag recycling provide collection bins. The recycling process calls for the bags to be picked up, cleaned, processed into pellets and manufactured into a wide range of products including grocery and trash bags.

Experts agree that consumers who are educated about recycling and who are willing to participate are the keys to successful recycling programs. So remember, if a program exists in your community, you can recycle plastic bags.

Conservation

Tips to help keep your lawn green and water plentiful

The New England Water Works Association reminds people to conserve the community's valuable water supplies while tending lawns and gardens in the months ahead. Here are some tips to conserve this critical resource.

• Water lawn or garden only when it needs it. Don't follow a fixed schedule. A good way to see if your lawn needs watering is to step on the grass. If it springs back up when you move, your lawn doesn't need water. If it stays flat, start the sprinkler. Water during the cool parts of the day. Heat and wind will rob your lawn of water before it can be used. Watering during cooler times of the day avoids excess evaporation. Early morning is generally a better time than dusk, since it helps to prevent the growth of fungus.

• Deep-soak your lawn. Water your lawn long enough for the moisture to soak down to the roots where it will do the most good. In this way, the lawn will develop a deeper root system, which requires less water and is more resistant to disease and wear. During a cool or cloudy spell, you don't need to water as often. A light sprinkling, on the other hand, can evaporate quickly and encourage a shallow root system. Use a soil-moisture indicator to tell when your lawn needs watering -and when it doesn't.

• Know how to turn off your automatic sprinkler system in case of rain.

• Aerate your lawn by punching holes six inches apart; water will reach the roots rather than run off surfaces.

• Keep your lawn free of weeds. Weeds are thirsty water thieves.

• Maintain your lawn with grass blades about 2 1/2 to 3 inches high. Grass blades can shade each other and reduce evaporation.

• Don't water the gutter. Lots of water applied rapidly to a lawn or garden will run off into the gutters. Instead, let water sink in slowly. Position lawn sprinkler so water lands on the lawn or garden, not on paved areas.

• Plant drought-resistant trees and plants. Many beautiful trees and plants thrive with far less watering than other species. Check your local garden shop for selections available in your area.

• Landscape with rock gardens to reduce the size of your lawn.

• Put a layer of mulch around trees and plants. Mulch will slow evaporation of moisture as well as discourage weed growth.

• Recycle water from your fish tank by using it to water plants. Fish emulsion is a good and inexpensive fertilizer, high in nitrogen and phosphorous.

• Use a broom or rake, not a hose, to clean walks, driveways and gutters.

• Don't leave the sprinkler running all day or the garden hose unattended. Your garden hose can pour out 600 gallons of water or more in only a few hours. Thousands of gallons can be wasted in a very short time.

• Check for leaks in outdoor hoses, faucets and couplings. Leaks outside the house may not seem as bad since they're not as visible, but they can be just as wasteful as leaks inside the house. Keep your hoses, faucets and couplings drip-free.

By using water wisely outdoors as well as indoors you can help your local water utility make sure there's plenty of safe, wholesome drinking water for both today and tomorrow.

Before you remodel your lower level, it pays to test now for elevated levels of Radon gas.

About one-third of Andover homes have dangerously high levels of Radon, a cancer-inducing, radioactive gas that percolates up from the soil beneath our homes. Radon gas is the second greatest cause of lung cancer in this country, far more dangerous than second-hand smoke and any other indoor pollutant. Radon levels are highest in our home's lowest level, and it is easier and less expensive to remedy before the basement is finished … and before you and your family risk increased exposures by spending more time in the home's lowest level.

Testing is fast & inexpensive. High levels can be permanently reduced to well below the EPA guidelines in any home.

Radon Diagnostic Services has, during the last four years, helped hundreds of homeowners to accurately determine Radon levels and to remedy high levels, if necessary, with guaranteed results.

Don't wait until you sell to learn you must make an added investment to reduce Radon levels in order to sell your home … an investment for which you will derive no direct benefit from dramatically reduced lung cancer risks.

Radon Diagnostic Services is the area's only EPA-approved, primary testing laboratory and EPA-approved Radon contractor, trained and experienced in all phases of testing, diagnostics, and remediation.

Homeowning hints

Additions may add up to more than you had bargained for

Homeowners planning to renovate should know the rules and understand the zoning ordinances and building codes that will affect their project.

According to Todd Skilton, president of Construction Concepts, a specialty contractor and design/build firm based in the Merrimack Valley, it's not too early to take the important preliminary steps necessary to assure that your project proceeds as scheduled.

Adding a second level or new addition to your home involves more than drawing up plans and pricing the supplies, explains Mr. Skilton. Ordinances and codes that determine what materials can be used and which affect building on your lot must be also considered.

Don't underestimate the time and paperwork involved, he warns.

It's more difficult to obtain building permits today as towns are trying to limit building and avoid over-development. If your project doesn't comply with your town's rules, you might need to apply for a variance or public approval to go ahead with your plans.

Unlike many contractors, Mr. Skilton guides homeowners through the process of applying for variances and obtaining permits. Acting as liaison between homeowners, town officials and legal counsel, he does whatever is necessary to avoid headaches for his customers and to get the job "off the ground." A seven-year veteran of the design/build industry, Skilton offers homeowners the following advice for planning major home renovations:

- Get a copy of your town's building code, read it completely and make sure you understand its provisions.
- Hire a contractor who is familiar with the laws in your town.
- Choose a contractor with the knowledge and communication skills needed for preparing documents and dealing with building inspectors, town officials and lawyers, if necessary.
- Make sure your contractor has design/build capabilities. He should be able to provide detailed drawings of your project. Be certain they are sufficient for obtaining clearance for second levels and new additions.
- Have the certified plot plan for your home handy when discussing plans with your contractor.
- Be aware that there are costs involved for filing paperwork and obtaining building permits.
- Talk to the building inspector in your town. He is the most knowledgeable and can help you avoid interruptions along the way.
- Know the square footage and boundaries of your land.
- Allow at least six months for obtaining permits.
- When buying a new home with plans to renovate, be sure to search town laws before closing the deal.
- Attend town meetings and public hearings. Keep abreast of what's happening in your town.
- Don't try to sidestep the rules. Avoiding necessary steps may hold up your project indefinitely.

Let your house-for-sale do the talking

Now head this: Let your house do the talking, and you're much more likely to sell it quickly.

That's the word from owners and real estate agents across the nation about a new phenomenon – "Talking Houses," houses for sale that can tell those who drive by all about their special features, from square footage to number of room, appliances and other vital statistics.

How to get your house talking? Simply speak into a special solid state recorder system, telling prospective home buyers what you'd like them to know about your house.

Then you set a sign into your front lawn instructing those who drive by to tune their radios to a certain station to hear all about what's for sale.

The sign of a house that talks: Passers-by can hear about a home's best features by turning on their radios.

One reason the system works so well can be found in a recent National Association of Home Builders survey. It found that 43 percent of the people who bought homes found them by driving through neighborhoods in which they might like to buy.

The device, designed by Realty Electronics, can bring a home to life like no other selling technique, according to its designer.

It works especially well for houses that look better up close or inside than they do from the road, they said.

The Talking House transmitter weighs less than three pounds, and it's solid state, so the sound quality never deteriorates and there are no tapes to break or wear out. It can be placed anywhere there's a grounded outlet, and it's FCC certified, so no license is required.

For more information on the Talking House, call 1-800-444-TALK.

Let there be less light

Here's a bright idea for adding a glimmer of glamor to any room: Get a dimmer.

Dimmer switches for your lights can mean more flexibility for your home. They lend an air of romance to dining room, living room or bedroom, make a relaxing bath more soothing still, keep lights right for TV viewers and enhance the look of a kitchen.

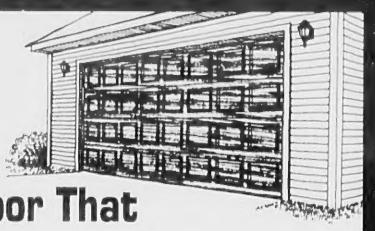

They also help conserve the life of your light bulbs and save enrgy.

What's more, you can get dimmer switches that look like classic toggle light switches.

When used with a three-way switch, these dimmers let you turn on the light from either of two locations, such as the opposite ends of a hallway, a stairway or a dining room.

Children need more than screens

Insect screens are for health and comfort, not for safety. They are intended only to keep insect and small birds out. They are not intended to keep children in.

That's the way it's always been, according to Frank S. Fitzgerald, CAE, a lifetime veteran of the window industry who is currently executive vice president and technical director of the Screen Manufacturers Association. Mr. Fitzgerald has been involved with safety programs of the National Safety Council since the early '60s. He currently serves on the Children's Home Falls Committee and the Consumer Product Safety Advisory Committee.

He suggests that you follow the advice below published by the National Safety Council:

• 1. If you must open a window in a room where a small child will be sleeping or playing, open it not more than four or five inches. If you fear a child can raise the window higher, secure it at the desired height with a "window burglar lock" or create your own device, such as a broomstick or piece of wood placed between the top of the raised window and the top of the window frame.

• 2. For windows that are opened with the turning of a handle, it may be a good idea simply to remove the handle and screw it back only when you need to adjust the window or for escape in case of a fire.

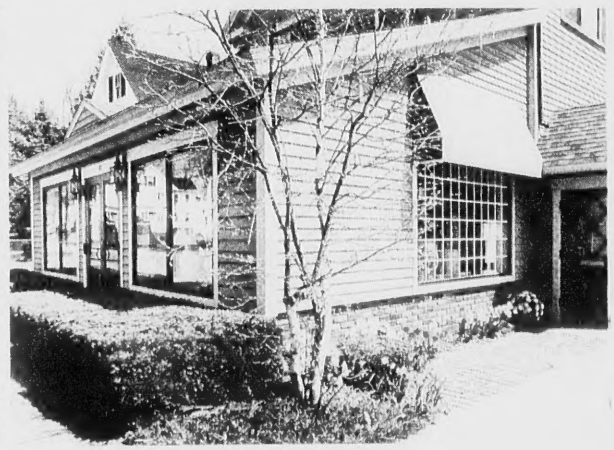

• 3. Curtains or shades over a window during nap time and at night will help keep a curious child from being attracted to the scene outdoors.

• 4. Be sure all screens are secure and in good repair, but do not depend on them for anything except to keep small birds and insects out.

• 5. Never place a child's bed or crib next to a window.

• 6. Avoid placing furniture under windows. If you cannot avoid it, keep the windows closed and locked.

• 7. Above all, keep an eye on your toddler.

"Our goal is to give your home the unique environment that you've always wanted."

Tips for lower energy bills and an energy-efficient home

The key to an energy-efficient home and lower cooling bills is knowing how and where to save. Here are energy-saving tips that involve little or no cost and can help shrink summer air conditioning bills while conserving energy.

• Plant deciduous trees (e.g. maples, oak, etc.) on the southern and western sides of your home. Their leaves provide shade and can help lower your home's temperature by up to 15 degrees.

• Check attic air vents and clear them of any dust or debris. If the attic is not vented, the conditioner will work harder than necessary.

• Insulate and seal air conditioning ducts. The joints and fittings of the duct system may allow air to pass into the attic and floor causing a loss of energy dollars.

• Have your cooling unit professionally tuned and cleaned.

Report cites change in housing trends

Americans today are rethinking the home – what it is and how it is used – in ways that may affect the design, construction, selection, purchase and remodeling of future houses, according to a study on trends and patterns in household life.

The report concludes that American homes could be much more useful to the people who live in them. Signs of change can be found in the following initiatives recorded in the Whirlpool Corp. study:

• The housing industry is devoting increased attention to making new housing affordable through smaller-sized homes and cost-saving construction techniques.

• Builders, furniture designers and appliance manufacturers such as Whirpool are using barrier-free and universal designs to meet the needs of both general and special population groups.

• The housing industry is exploring flexibility in home design to accommodate a household life which includes a growing number of diverse and concurrent activities – elder care, child care and home offices.

• Some developers are moving away from large, homogeneous tract subdivisions to more socioeconomically diverse and more environmentally sensitive developments.

The Whirlpool Home Life Issues Study reports on trends and patterns in household life based on the findings of a quantitative analysis of some 700 news articles about the American home.

These findings were interpreted by 13 experts on housing and home design.

Overall, the report demonstrates movement to a more "usable" home among participants in the housing industry, but concludes that such change will be gradual.
